91 Groups Listed As Subversive

Communists, KKK Are Branded

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—A list of 91 organizations branded "subversive" by Attorney General Tom Clark was received by all government departments and agencies today for use in the loyalty sift of federal employees.

The list, which includes the Communist party and the Ku Klux Klan, was prepared by Clark for the government's loyalty review board which sent out copies to all federal agency chiefs.

Clark told Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the review board, that membership in one of the organizations is not necessarily proof of disloyalty but "is simply one piece of evidence which may or may not be helpful in arriving at a conclusion" in a loyalty case.

Forty-seven of the organizations previously had been circulated within government agencies for loyalty-check purposes but 33 others and 11 "schools" were listed for the first time.

The supplemental list of 33 organizations cited as "totalitarian, Fascist, Communist or subversive" follows:

AMERICAN Polish Labor council, American Youth for Democracy, Armenian Progressive League of America, Civil Rights Congress and its affiliated organizations, including: Civil Rights Congress for Texas, Veterans Against Discrimination of Civil Rights, Congress of New York, the Columbians, the Communist party and its affiliates and committees.

The Communist affiliates and committees included:

Citizens Committee of the Upper West Side (New York City), Committee to Aid the Fighting South, Dennis Defense committee, Labor Research association, Inc., Southern Negro Youth Congress, United May Day committee, United Negro and Allied Veterans of America.

Other organizations were: Connecticut State Youth conference, Council on African Affairs, Hollywood Writers Mobilization for Defense, Hungarian Council for Democracy, International Workers Order, Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee committee, Ku Klux Klan;

Ashville Man Gets Sentence

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—A Franklin County common pleas court judge added a blast at looseness of the state's driver license laws to imposition of a six-month sentence for manslaughter today.

Judge Cecil J. Randall sentenced Clinton Everett, 63, of Ashville, to the workhouse after the railroad section hand pleaded guilty to the second-degree manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Mrs. Grace Tucker, 51, of Reese Station, who was hit by his car last April.

The judge declared that Everett "never should have been granted a license." The convicted driver is blind in one eye and admitted in court that his vision with the other was poor.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

This is one Christmas no one will go without a gift. There is a dandy inflation spiral for each of us.

Still things have improved—15 years ago millions were jobless and couldn't buy anything but today almost everyone is working and can't buy anything.

At last we have the cure for inflation. Phil Murray says "we want more money for our production" and Earl Bunting says "we want more production for our money."

This year Phil sent his Christmas list direct to Earl. But it's all right for youngsters to go on believing that Santa Claus is not the NAM.

Murray assures us that prices need not rise to meet another wage demand. This assurance is not to be confused with a lifetime guarantee.

Plans Set For Food Campaign

Meatless, Eggless Days To Stay

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—The administration mapped plans today to continue its food conservation drive for another year with the twin-objective of bringing down food prices at home and saving grain for European relief.

President Truman's cabinet food committee, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, emphasized that the food-saving drive will be intensified during the next 12 months.

"Meatless Tuesdays" and "Eggless Thursdays" will continue and the distilling, brewing and baking industries are being asked to adopt long-range conservation practices. Anderson said some sort of enforced controls may be necessary in the liquor industry.

The committee, which will administer the campaign originally launched by Charles Luckman, announced the intensified program on the heels of reports that Americans now are consuming more meat than before the meatless days were instituted.

JAMES A. Stillwell, who took over direction of the drive upon the resignation of Luckman, said that efforts will be made to make the meatless and eggless days more effective. He declared:

"By choosing their food wisely, the American people can continue to eat well and at the same time help to check rising food prices. A major objective of the voluntary food conservation program will be to prevent undue increases in the cost of food."

Stillwell's action followed reports of little compliance with the voluntary program.

Even CIO President Philip Murray, a member of the citizens' food committee, said that he has "little faith" in a voluntary campaign.

Food committee officials explained that the distilling industry will not be asked to continue the whisky-making shutdown which ends Christmas, but that the distillers are expected to curtail production during the coming year.

The Distilled Spirits Institute, which represents 70 percent of the nation's distilleries, promised to help draw up a long-range curtailment plan for the industry.

The brewing and baking industries probably will be requested to continue the conservation practices they already have adopted. These practices include a reduction in the amount of grain used for beer-making and a cut in the production of pastry products.

'Clipping Preacher' Out For Title

CHICAGO, Dec. 5—The Rev. Hugh E. Dooley, 31, known as the "clipping preacher" from Crawfordsville, Ind., is going on a rampage today.

The minister, who preaches at the Berea Christian church in Brazil, Ind., and the New Bethel church in Rockville, Ind., is going to clip some sheep.

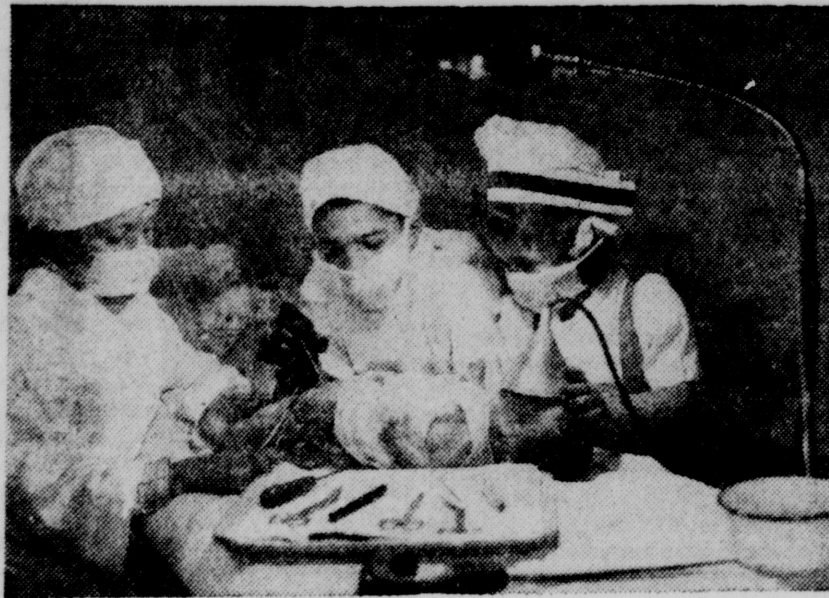

The occasion will be the annual professional sheep shearing contest, a feature of the 48th International Livestock Exposition here.

Dooley is one of the most enterprising sheep shearers in Indiana. On several occasions he has entered shearing contests and won top honors. Last year he missed by one point of annexing the international professional sheep shearing title.

Prowess with the clippers is one of the few basic farm arts that pays well, providing you're fast enough.

A good shearer is worth around 72 cents a head and a good one will clip 300 of the woolly animals in a day.

4 Yanks Hurt When Ambushed In Palestine

JERUSALEM, Dec. 5—Four American airline crewmembers were injured in an Arab ambush today in Palestine, where other hit-and-run Moslem attacks resulted in the slaying of two Jews and injuries to several other persons.

Jews sources in Jerusalem reported that heavy gunfire could be heard from the Zablavi quarter of Tel Aviv, where Jewish ex-servicemen have established a colony.

One of those injured was J. C. Hall, British manager of the Haifa army canteen, who was wounded in the thigh by gunmen this morning. A Jewish employee of the canteen was killed in the raid.

Another Jew was slain and still another wounded in an Arab attack upon the Jewish quarter of Esra, outside Tel Aviv. Several Arabs were wounded in the assault.

A REPORT reaching Jerusalem by way of Khartoum, meanwhile, said that Aden—at the southernmost section of the Arabian peninsula—is cut off from the rest of the world by "heavy rioting" in the British colony.

Average Milk Price Rises

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—Prices paid Ohio milk producers rose only slightly in October over September as production showed less than its usual seasonal decrease.

The monthly dairy report of the Federal and State Agriculture departments showed today that the farmers were paid an average of $4.67 a hundredweight for milk with 3.5 percent butterfat content by fluid markets in October. This was only two cents above the price the previous month.

However, the gross price showed an increase of 10 cents to $5.13 because of higher butterfat content.

Producers received an average of $3.66 from milk manufacturing plants, an increase of three cents. The gross price showed a 23-cent rise to $4.44.

Money Awaiting Missing Man

Mrs. Wolven said she had been separated from her husband, Lester Wolven, 38, since 1943, and had been unable to locate him.

Assembly Gathers Up Loose Ends

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—An acquiescent legislature met in skeleton session today to gather up the loose ends of Governor Thomas Herbert's 11-point program which it enacted in toto in just slightly more than 24 hours.

The solons, who were called in special session at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon, wound up their actual work on the 11 administration bills just as darkness fell last night.

The leaders were to sign nine of the bills and send them to the governor this afternoon. The other two—the liquid fuel tax repealer and the measure increasing the gasoline tax from three to four cents to compensate for the fuel tax loss—will not be signed until sine die adjournment, set for December 22.

In that way, Governor Herbert can sign the two measures on December 31 so that they become effective jointly the first of the year.

Herbert's program included a 20-million-dollar appropriation for bonus bond retirement and a supplemental appropriation of $9,676,087 to the various hard-pressed state departments.

THE LATTER figure included funds for a $10-a-month pay increase for all state workers whose base pay is $3,000 a year or less, and some five and three quarters million dollars to the welfare department for full matching of locally-expended (Continued on Page Two)

Bloody Harlan County Hearing Gunfire Again

HARLAN, Ky., Dec. 5—A modern version of the old-time Eastern Kentucky feud today appeared to be smoldering in the mountains on the border of Leslie and Harlan Counties.

In less than five days an estimated total of nine machineguns were reported to have rattled out with more than 300 shots to kill one man and wound four other persons, including a woman and a teen-aged boy.

There have been no arrests.

Kentucky State Highway Patrolman Earl Gilbert—whose powers of arrest and investigation are limited to highway incidents—said that "it appeared there might be some connection" between the burning of a roadside inn Wednesday night and the ambush-slaying of Cornelius Caldwell last Saturday.

The building burned was the Medo-Mont tavern in Leslie County, two miles from the Harlan County line. Owner Theo Brock said it was set ablaze with a dynamite explosion and a truck parked outside also was given the torch at the same time.

AS BROCK ran to fight the fire, he said that gunfire broke out from several hillside positions. Brock said there appeared to have been about six or seven gun posts with about three men

LONDON, Dec. 5—Secretary of State George Marshall criticized Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov severely today for proposing the immediate establishment of a German government before reaching agreement on the country's economic unity.

Marshall, in one of the strongest statements made so far in the current Big Four foreign ministers parley, asserted it would be a "sham and delusion" to establish a German government to administer a divided Germany.

Stating that the American government favors the establishment of a provisional government in Germany at the earliest possible moment, Marshall declared:

"But we regard it dangerous to the security of the allied nations and the peace of the world and cruelly misleading to the Germans themselves to pretend that the mere setting up of a Central German government would result in healing the division in Germany."

THE STATE department secretary called upon Molotov to "be precise" regarding the conditions which will make the central government a "living reality and not a pretense."

Marshall said the division which exists in the country today was "created by the allies and it is their responsibility to resolve it." He continued:

"The United States wants an all-German government just as soon as there's an 'all Germany' to be governed and 'all German work' to be done."

Asserting that the question of economic unification involves "harsh realities," the American diplomat urged the Russian to "drop generalities" and "try to find out what each delegation really has in mind in respect to a settlement for Germany."

He said that before any decision is reached on the kind of government to be established in Germany the ministers must be agreed on common principles to enable such a government to function effectively. Marshall continued:

"In my opinion, these include basic freedom for the individual, abolition of the zonal boundaries, no hindrance to the free flow of persons, ideas and goods throughout all of Germany, and a clear determination of the economic burdens that the German people must bear."

poor relief expenditures and to meet increased institutional costs for food, clothing and maintenance.

The only hitch in the governor's program—and it was a slight one—came when the rural brigade in the house refused to go along completely with his proposal to reduce from 65 to 60 percent. The majority necessary to pass special tax levies at special, primary or general elections.

Despite the vigorous objections of the governor, the house knocked out the provision allowing the levies to be placed before the voters at special elections, knocked out the emergency clause making the bill immediately effective, and reduced the term of the bill from June 1, 1949 to December 31, 1948.

When Herbert objected, Speaker C. William O'Neill told him bluntly that he would have to take the bill that way or not at all—that that was the only way it could get past the "cornstalk club."

Other bills passed by both houses without serious opposition will:

Correct an earlier legislative mistake and restore the highway construction fund for the state highway department and the townships;

Make the flat $10 auto license fee applicable to all 1948 tags; Eliminate the general fund appropriations to local subdivisions for road purposes, since these funds are more than compensated for by the increased allocations under the expanded gasoline tax;

Permit school boards to raise teacher salaries during the terms of teacher contracts;

Authorize the liquor director to sell surplus stocks to the highest bidder;

Permit pay increases to the employees of the Akron municipal court, and

Authorize the city of Cincinnati to convey to the federal government land for a veterans' hospital.

A house fight developed on the auto tag proposal when an amendment was introduced to cut the flat fee from $10 to $7. The amendment lost by 10 votes, 55 to 65.

The senate also confirmed nine more interim appointments of the governor, bringing to 33 the number of approved appointments by the governor since the regular session adjourned last June.

Contest Of Georgia James Will Dismissed By County Court

Declaring the will of Mrs. Georgia H. James valid, Common Pleas Judge William Radcliff has dismissed the suit filed in contest of the document.

The journal entry dismissing the suit was filed Friday in the office of Arthur L. Wilder, Pickaway County clerk of courts. The dismissal of the action followed an out-of-court settlement, the terms of which were undisclosed.

Mrs. James, who lived for many years at 127 West Mound street, died March 8, 1947, at the age of 87. She left an estate valued at $157,500.

The entry rules that Mrs. Frances Bennett Dimity, of Ross County, a cousin of Mrs. James, "is not a proper person to contest the validity of the will."

THE WILL was probated March 18, 1947, and Probate Judge Sterling M. Lamb appointed Attorney Lemuel B. Weldon administrator with the will annexed.

Mrs. Dimity on Sept. 17, 1947, filed the suit asking that the will be set aside. Her petition cited that the will bears the date of April 29, 1936, and that the defendants named in the contest suit were listed as legatees in the will.

The estate of Mrs. James consists of real estate $125,000, rentals $10,000, and personal property $22,500.

Mrs. James was the widow of Lemuel B. James. Her will bequeathed the bulk of the estate to Edward L. Smith, Bess L. Fry, Elizabeth Smith, and St. Philip's Episcopal church, all of Circleville and to Harriett Hoffman Coleman LaJolla Calif.

The document bequeathed the West Mound street residence and most of the furniture to St. Philip's church and indicated that the residence was to be used as the church rectory. The real estate includes a 915-acre farm in Ross County and a 400-acre farm in Pickaway County.

end the present division in Germany." Marshall said the failure of the Big Four to agree on a German settlement so far has "retarded the rehabilitation of Germany and Europe with tragic results for hundreds of millions of people." He added:

"The United States wants a real government, not a facade. This government should reflect the free will of the German people, and should be permitted to administer Germany without outside interference except for such necessary security measures as the allies may jointly decide to impose."

Before this afternoon's meeting got underway, Marshall lunched with Molotov privately, and American delegation sources said he intended to make a strong appeal to the Russian to make a change in the Soviet's basic foreign policy.

Marshall is said to be planning to urge immediate establishment of German central administrative agencies for finance, agriculture, and industry.

His plan for Germany's economic unity calls for:

1—Removal of all zonal barriers;
2—Use, on a common basis throughout Germany, of indigenous products and imports;
3—An export-import program designed to enable Germany to become self-supporting at the earliest possible date;
4—Issuance of a new stabilized currency, and
5—Elimination of the veto power in allied control council decisions which affect Germany's economic life.

Marshall is assured full support of the British for these proposals, while French Foreign objective at the discussions will be to tie up the question of an increased level of German industry with security.

Boy, 13, Sent To Lancaster

A 13-year-old Circleville youth was committed to the boys' industrial school, Lancaster, Thursday, and a 15-year-old lad was placed on five-year probation as juvenile authorities wound up investigation of a series of thefts.

The 13-year-old reversed a previous story when questioned by Juvenile Judge Sterling M. Lamb and absolved the 15-year-old of all connection with the theft of 18 muskrat pelts. The lad, maintained, however, that the older boy had been associated with him in other Circleville thefts.

John Kerns, juvenile probation officer, took the younger lad Friday to the Lancaster institution. Judge Lamb said both boys previously had been on probation.

The pelts were stolen from the basement of the home of Roy Walisa, 343 East Ohio street, Nov. 30. The 13-year-old admitted he sold them to a Circleville junk dealer for $36. The two boys were arrested and placed in jail after Police Chief William F. McCrady had reported, and Edith Alice Schleich, clerk, Route 1, Williamsport.

DEATHS and Funerals

HAROLD T. ANDERSON

Funeral services for Harold Theodore Anderson, 30, who died Wednesday in a hospital at Van Wert, were to be conducted at 2 p. m. Friday in the Deffenbaugh funeral home, Circleville, with the Rev. Carl Butterbaugh officiating.

Burial was to be in the Hitler-Ludwig cemetery. It had been previously announced that services would be held Saturday afternoon in the Morris church in Pickaway township.

4 Yanks Hurt When Ambushed In Palestine

Aden and the outside world were severed.

The attack upon the American fliers, following another Arab assault on Trans World Airlines passengers yesterday, occurred despite an official Moslem announcement that scheduled anti-participation demonstrations are to end.

The Americans, travelling under police escort, were injured when their vehicle was halted by a roadblock.

Before the guards in an accompanying armored car could intervene, the crew members were showered with stones from the Arab ambush. The attack continued until the police managed to extricate them.

Jerusalem, meanwhile, was isolated this morning when a 10-hour curfew went into effect at dawn. The curfew covered roads entering the holy city, and effectively cut off the city from villages as far north as Ramallah and south to Hebron.

The only other curfew to be extended this morning was in Jerusalem's commercial center, which was the scene of wild rioting Tuesday and Wednesday.

A three-day general strike by Palestine's 1,250,000 Arabs—in which accompanying violence brought death to at least 35 persons and left more than 150 wounded—ended officially at dawn.

ment, which has pushed drastic anti-strike legislation through the national assembly, some of the civil service workers are expected to begin their walk-outs later today.

Not all of the million government employees are expected to participate in the strike, however.

Strong opposition to the strike order was indicated when the union's executive committee voted on the measure during the night. Final vote showed 27 representatives for the walkout, 23 against, and seven abstaining from voting.

Many functionaries and members of the Christian Union, which is opposed to the Communist-led organizations, are resisting the order.

Civil service workers in all government departments—including the ministries of health, education, economy and general administration—would be affected by the order.

The decision to strike was taken after the union flatly rejected an offer by Schuman's government for an overall 110-billion francs raise in pay.

Meanwhile, the consensus of Rightist and Centrist Paris papers was that the social unrest—which already has advanced to the stage where a virtual state of guerrilla warfare existed in Southeastern France—is now entering an even more acute phase.

Judge Hearing Case Involving Election Result

Hearing of a suit contesting the election of Thomas L. Beavers to the post of Washington Township trustee at the Nov. 4 election was in progress Friday afternoon before Judge Earl D. Parker, of Waverly, in Pickaway county common pleas court. Judge Parker, of the Pike County common pleas bench, was sitting in place of Judge William D. Radcliff.

The suit was instituted by O. F. Seimer, losing candidate for trustee of Washington Township, who alleges the election of Beavers was "illegal."

The official vote on a non-partisan ballot was 45 for Beavers, 26 for Seimer, and four for Harold Young. All three were "write-in" candidates, there having been no names of trustee candidates printed on the ballot.

Seimer contends that while Beavers was a "duly appointed and acting clerk of the election board" in the township, Beavers "influenced" certain voters to cast their ballots for Beavers.

SEIMER also alleges that Walter G. Richards, president of the township election board, exerted similar "influence," and that Beavers and Richards were guilty of "improper, immoral and illegal" conduct.

poor relief expenditures and to meet increased institutional costs for food, clothing and maintenance.

The only hitch in the governor's program—and it was a slight one—came when the rural brigade in the house refused to go along completely with his proposal to reduce from 65 to 60 percent. The majority necessary to pass special tax levies at special, primary or general elections.

Despite the vigorous objections of the governor, the house knocked out the provision allowing the levies to be placed before the voters at special elections, knocked out the emergency clause making the bill immediately effective, and reduced the term of the bill from June 1, 1949 to December 31, 1949.

When Herbert objected, Speaker C. William O'Neill told him bluntly that he would have to take the bill that way or not at all—that that was the only way it could get past the "cornstalk club."

Other bills passed by both houses without serious opposition will:

Correct an earlier legislative mistake and restore the highway construction fund for the state highway department and the townships;

Make the flat $10 auto license fee applicable to all 1948 tags; Eliminate the general fund appropriations to local subdivisions for road purposes, since these funds are more than compensated for by the increased allocations under the expanded gasoline tax;

Permit school boards to raise teacher salaries during the terms of teacher contracts;

Authorize the liquor director to sell surplus stocks to the highest bidder;

Permit pay increases to the employees of the Akron municipal court, and

Authorize the city of Cincinnati to convey to the federal government land for a veterans' hospital.

A house fight developed on the auto tag proposal when an amendment was introduced to cut the flat fee from $10 to $7. The amendment lost by 10 votes, 55 to 65.

The senate also confirmed nine more interim appointments of the governor, bringing to 33 the number of approved appointments by the governor since the regular session adjourned last June.

Contest Of Georgia James Will Dismissed By County Court

Declaring the will of Mrs. Georgia H. James valid, Common Pleas Judge William Radcliff has dismissed the suit filed in contest of the document.

The journal entry dismissing the suit was filed Friday in the office of Arthur L. Wilder, Pickaway County clerk of courts. The dismissal of the action followed an out-of-court settlement, the terms of which were undisclosed.

Mrs. James, who lived for many years at 127 West Mound street, died March 8, 1947, at the age of 87. She left an estate valued at $157,500.

The entry rules that Mrs. Frances Bennett Dimity, of Ross County, a cousin of Mrs. James, "is not a proper person to contest the validity of the will."

THE WILL was probated March 18, 1947, and Probate Judge Sterling M. Lamb appointed Attorney Lemuel B. Weldon administrator with the will annexed.

Mrs. Dimity on Sept. 17, 1947, filed the suit asking that the will be set aside. Her petition cited that the will bears the date of April 29, 1936, and that the defendants named in the contest suit were listed as legatees in the will.

The estate of Mrs. James consists of real estate $125,000, rentals $10,000, and personal property $22,500.

Mrs. James was the widow of Lemuel B. James. Her will bequeathed the bulk of the estate to Edward L. Smith, Bess L. Fry, Elizabeth Smith, and St. Philip's Episcopal church, all of Circleville, and to Harriett Hoffman Coleman LaJolla Calif.

The document bequeathed the West Mound street residence and most of the furniture to St. Philip's church and indicated that the residence was to be used as the church rectory. The real estate includes a 915-acre farm in Ross County and a 400-acre farm in Pickaway County.

The defendants listed in Mrs. Dimity's suit were: David E. Crouse, Kingston; Jane Crouse; Martha Crouse Holman, Kingston; Nell Crouse Black, Kingston; Lydia Crouse; Bruce Bennett, Kinnikinnick; Gilbert Bennett, Jean Bennett Rice, Sarah McCoy, Starling S. Wilcox, Jr., J. M. Wilcox; Harry Johnson.

ment, which has pushed drastic anti-strike legislation through the national assembly, some of the civil service workers are expected to begin their walk-outs later today.

Not all of the million government employees are expected to participate in the strike, however.

Strong opposition to the strike order was indicated when the union's executive committee voted on the measure during the night. Final vote showed 27 representatives for the walkout, 23 against, and seven abstaining from voting.

Many functionaries and members of the Christian Union, which is opposed to the Communist-led organizations, are resisting the order.

Civil service workers in all government departments—including the ministries of health, education, economy and general administration—would be affected by the order.

The decision to strike was taken after the union flatly rejected an offer by Schuman's government for an overall 110-billion francs raise in pay.

Meanwhile, the consensus of Rightist and Centrist Paris papers was that the social unrest—which already has advanced to the stage where a virtual state of guerrilla warfare existed in Southeastern France—is now entering an even more acute phase.

stroying the tavern and the truck and causing losses which Brock estimated at $40,000, the machinegun fire from the hills also raked the Brock residence nearby.

Several small children sleeping in the building were covered with glass and wood splinters but escaped injury.

Brock's tavern was on the Harlan-Hyden road and only a few miles from another tavern where Caldwell, the one-legged Purple Heart war veteran was dating Saturday with his brother, Ray, 23, also a war veteran. The two had stopped with the girls at the tavern of Lee France and then gotten back into the cab of a truck.

TWO OR MORE machineguns opened fire on the truck within a hundred yards of France's place, killing Cornelius and wounding Ray. The latter was released from a hospital Tuesday to attend his brother's funeral.

The boys were sons of Leslie County Police Captain William Caldwell, who has figured in raids on the Brock establishment many times in the past.

After Cornelius' death, Captain Caldwell said he knew of no enemies of Cornelius but the boy may have been "a victim of mistaken identity."

Judge Hearing Case Involving Election Result

Hearing of a suit contesting the election of Thomas L. Beavers to the post of Washington Township trustee at the Nov. 4 election was in progress Friday afternoon before Judge Earl D. Parker, of Waverly, in Pickaway county common pleas court. Judge Parker, of the Pike County common pleas bench, was sitting in place of Judge William D. Radcliff.

The suit was instituted by O. F. Seimer, losing candidate for trustee of Washington Township, who alleges the election of Beavers was "illegal."

The official vote on a non-partisan ballot was 45 for Beavers, 26 for Seimer, and four for Harold Young. All three were "write-in" candidates, there having been no names of trustee candidates printed on the ballot.

Seimer contends that while Beavers was a "duly appointed and acting clerk on the election board" in the township, Beavers "influenced" certain voters to cast their ballots for Beavers.

SEIMER also alleges that Walter G. Richards, president of the township election board, exerted similar "influence," and that Beavers and Richards were guilty of "improper, immoral and illegal" conduct.

G-Men May Never Air
Brewster-Hughes Case

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 — Although they can't say much about it officially, Justice department officials now find themselves in an extremely ticklish spot.

Their dilemma: Whether to proceed with a full-dress investigation into the truth behind the now-famous "you're a liar" exchange between Senator Owen Brewster and the multi-millionaire planemaker, Howard Hughes.

Certain department operatives who were assigned to watch Brewster's senate war investigation committee's activities during recent months know what they'd like to do.

Unofficially, and when assured that they won't be quoted personally, they'll admit that they're fairly itching to get their hands on the case. Which of the two men they think would turn out to be the liar in the case depends entirely on which of the FBI-men you talk to.

But they all agree that the case is crying for investigation.

UNDER PRESENT conditions, however, their hands are tied in a manner unpleasant to consider in connection with our democratic processes of law and order. Reading from left to right, the situation seems to stack up something like this: During recent days, Senator Brewster has made it perfectly clear that he isn't "requesting" an investigation.

For reasons, which as yet remain somewhat unclear, officially speaking, the Maine Republican released an exchange of letters between his office and the Justice department on that subject.

The issue involved was Hughes' assertion (and Brewster's subsequent denial) under oath that the senator had offered to call off the committee's investigation of $40,000,000 in Hughes' aircraft war contracts if Hughes would agree to a merger of the Pan American Airways and Trans World Airlines. Also, Hughes charged that Brewster demanded he support the so-called "chosen instrument" international airline bill.

Brewster took the stand to deny (also under oath) all the allegations. Subsequently, he sent Attorney General Tom Clark a statement declaring that "I will welcome and invite the most thorough exploration of this charge by the attorney general in justice to all concerned."

Taking the statement literally, the Justice department assumed he was requesting such an investigation to clear his name in the controversy. As a matter of form, department officials wrote a letter to the senator to confirm the request in their files.

In the exchange of correspondence which followed, Brewster insisted he had never requested an investigation of the Hughes charges.

The implication was stern and unmistakable. Brewster, who may of course be utterly in the right and merely weary of further controversy on the subject, does not want the subject probed.

Which brings us to the unpleasant aspect of the situation, as follows:

NEXT YEAR, congress will be asked to OK an increased Justice department appropriation.

A single senator can do a lot of damage to such an appropriation—particularly with the help of other senators and representatives who, as a matter of principle, don't like the idea of the Justice department investigating congressmen.

Thus, you can rest assured that, although their fingers are itching to get into the case, the G-men—as a matter of department preservation—will lay off the Brewster-Hughes controversy, unless Hughes publicly and persistently presses the charges.

Pleasing Girls

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—The millennium has arrived for Ohio State university's co-eds.

At one time, three years ago during the war, enrollment of men at the university was only two-thirds of the total number of women. Dating prospects of the girls were dim.

However, a new enrollment tabulation announced today by the dean of women's office revealed that now the situation has been reversed with a vengeance. Four men are enrolled at the university for every girl. The bidding for dates is strictly selective.

Possibility that a real "holy war" in Palestine may be deferred until after the withdrawal of British troops was seen in well-informed circles today.

Despite continued and widening clashes, it is nevertheless true that the present situation falls a great deal far short of "war."

From a purely materialistic viewpoint, it must be admitted that the casualties, however regrettable, are not heavy.

And it is significant that many Arab spokesmen have emphasized that attacks on Jews and upon American, British and Soviet institutions in the Middle East, are not being directed from any central source.

In other words, they are ascribed to the rag-tag and bobtail or Arab extremists. At least one leader of the Moslems has said that such unauthorized disturbances damage rather than aid the Arab cause.

BUT THIS does not mean that the present riots will dwindle out into nothingness. On the contrary, sporadic battles are bound to occur over a period of many months.

When the British withdrawal is completed, or nearly so, then the real test will come.

There is no means or purpose of attempting to disguise the very deep resentment that the Arabs feel over the partitioning of Palestine.

The vigor with which their most distinguished leaders fought against it in the United Nations general assembly simply mirrors in diplomatic tones the much more violent indignation experienced by the rank and file.

There may yet be a peaceful solution. But it is difficult to foresee a permanent one. The Arab if nothing else is a patient man. His belief in "Kismet" is all-encompassing.

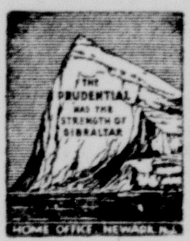

And if he believes that destiny calls for an Arab world from Casablanca to the Russian steppes, it does not matter too greatly whether fulfillment comes in this generation or the next.

But as among all peoples, the Arabs have their hotheads who feel that too great delay is an insult to the prophet and a man-made interference with a holy decree.

Extremists on both sides are certain to keep the Middle East in a state of turmoil.

EFFORT REWARDED

THE OLD fashioned incentive and reward pay system was revived to good effect recently in Michigan. When the automobile title division of a civil service department was faced with preparing address stencils for 2,000,000 car owners by Dec. 1, it found that a limited office force would have to handle about 175 names per worker per day. Many, however, were inexperienced and could manage only 50 names. It was decided to advance salaries from the basic $135 a month to $145 for 200 names struck off, and to $165 when 235 a day could be turned out.

The idea worked. Shortly 70 percent of the employees were meeting the 235 peak with consequent wage increases. Because of the expense avoided in shortening the project, about $78,000 will be saved taxpayers in operating costs.

It used to be that a job applicant expected to start at a modest pay level and win pay advance in relation to his own increased efficiency and production. With the modern system of fixed job lot wages for all workers without consideration of individual performance, the simple and logical device of incentive has been lost sight of. It is refreshing to learn that it has not entirely passed out. It is particularly noteworthy to find it functioning in a public office. Those taxpayers are doubtless surprised to hear about it, too.

REAL OPERATION RATHOLE

GOV. THOMAS Dewey would have the United States give active aid to Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese government in its war against the Communists. He would lend money to the government, and also turn over the military supplies that are now stored in the Philippines, Guam, Okinawa and Japan. Otherwise he fears that the Communists will conquer all China.

Dewey's fears are understandable. Unfortunately many Americans who have long striven to believe in Chiang Kai-Shek and his American-educated wife have reluctantly abandoned their faith. The government seems to be unspeakably reactionary and corrupt. Gen. Marshall and Gen. Wedemeyer, in their missions to China, tried to insist on some measure of reform as a condition of American aid. They failed. The Chiang officials said "Yes, yes", and did nothing whatsoever except to pocket what funds were turned over. Aid to Europe has been described by some of its opponents as pouring money down a rathole. The Chiang government seems to be operating a larger and deeper rathole. Dewey admits this, but says that some of our help would get through and be used against the Communists. Would it be worth it?

Speaking of Christmas presents, it would not be unlike John L. Lewis' sense of the fitness of things to give the United States a Christmas gift in the form of a coal strike.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

For some weeks, we have been dealing with the movies; let us now turn to book reviews. This has become quite a business in recent years, some newspapers running a daily book review column by a sort of book columnist who pretends to read the most massive and erudite volumes in the course of an afternoon. That it cannot be done is obvious; for instance, Du Nouy's "Human Destiny" cannot be read like a Rex Stout murder.

I recently came across a review of Freda Utley's "Last Chance in China," by Harold R. Isaacs. Apparently, the editor of the "New York Times Book Review" operates like a town hall debate, getting someone who dislikes a book and its author to give the other side. Differing from the town hall, however, he permits no rebuttal, making it possible for an antagonistic review to kill a book.

Now Freda Utley is a well-informed lady, an ex-Communist who has lived in Russia and China and knows what she is talking about. Long before the present converts to the "Russian menace," who are hopping on the bandwagon of anti-Communism fast, Freda Utley recognized the danger and said it out loud. In those days that was a daring thing to do, because if one risked telling the truth, the galleons of propaganda roared upon the truth-teller with hatred.

So, Isaacs says that Utley's point of view is:

"... She believes that no present evil in the world, like the Greek monarchy, the Turkish dictatorship, or a corrupt Chinese officialdom, is comparable to the Russian evil; that nothing was more naive than the notions that led President Roosevelt at Yalta to sign an agreement that launched Russia on its new driver for power in Asia. ..."

With that he disagrees. His view is: "We can share Miss Utley's urgent fear of Russian totalitarianism. But it is more difficult to see how we are going to exorcise the menace by joining hands with the Chiang Kai-Sheks and Chen Li-Fus of China or of any country. If these are the only possible allies of democracy, then Miss Utley's too is a program for darkness."

In other words, he holds that the United States can afford to pick and choose its allies and not use what is at hand. He makes the further point that Freda Utley says that it might cost us $15 billion to support Chiang. She actually said that $3 billion or $4 billion would probably suffice. She does make the point, however, that China's importance to us is so great that $10 billion or $15 billion would not be too great a cost. I have my own doubts about all these billions just as I have my doubts about the billions for Europe, but Isaacs clearly misquotes and misrepresents Miss Utley's position, which he has no right to do. I found another such misrepresentation but do not choose to give it space.

Mr. Isaacs does not favor Chiang Kai-Shek. Whom he does favor does not appear in his review, but the editor of the "New York Times Book Review," needing to decorate his page, to make it lively and attractive to the reader, fills it out with a photograph of "Soldiers of the Chinese Communist Army," who look like any other Chinese soldiers, neither better nor worse. He could have used a photograph of the Chinese government's army against whom these boys are in rebellion. They would have looked about the same.

A Doctor Turns Detective

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AN allergic person is one who is sensitive to some substance which is harmless to others. The offending substance can be almost anything—a food, which others eat with relish; a bit of pollen, unnoticed by the vast majority; the feathers in a comfortable pillow; or even a drug which has saved the lives of millions.

Any of these things and hundreds of others can cause allergic persons untold discomfort in the form of asthma, hay-fever, eczema, or hives.

Doctor Turns Detective

When the doctor suspects that the symptoms a person has are due to allergy, he must turn detective in order to track down the substances that are causing the trouble. He must know about the time of the attacks and where they occur. He will question the patient carefully about the foods he eats and about the type of furnishings in the home.

For example, if the attacks come in the late spring or summer, they are likely to be due to some pollen. If the attacks come in the later summer and fall, ragweed is the probable culprit. If they occur the year round, it is possible they are due to some food. The person may be sensitive to house dust, or the danger from a dog, or to hair used in stuffing furniture.

Skin-Testing

The physician has a weapon which aids him in his detective work of finding what is causing the trouble. This weapon is skin-testing. This is carried out by injecting into the skin a tiny amount of an extract from the various foods, pollen and dusts. If you are sensitive to the substance which is being tested, a red swelling will usually develop within fifteen minutes at the point where the injection is made. If these skin tests show the doctor the substances to which you are sensitive, he must then figure out ways and means of keeping you out of contact with them. If you are sensitive to some particular food, of course the easiest answer is not to eat that food. If you are sensitive to feathers, some other type of pillow may be substituted for the feather pillow.

Cannot Avoid Contact

Sometimes, however, a person is sensitive to substances with which he just cannot avoid contact. In such cases, it is possible to desensitize by giving injections of the offending substance in gradual, increasing doses.

Unfortunately, many persons may not be benefited by this form of treatment. In such cases, new drugs such as benadryl and pyribenzamine, as well as drugs which have been used for a longer period of time such as ephedrine and epinephrine, may be helpful in giving temporary relief.

If you have symptoms of one of these allergic disorders, consult your doctor promptly. He will carry out the necessary tests and studies to determine what is responsible. Then he can carry through course of treatment which will bring relief.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

CATHY wasn't conscious of any process of thought by which she had reached a decision. She was conscious only that the decision was there, full-blown, ready to be put into action.

When Bill came in a little later, she had finished her packing, and at the dressing table she was settling her small, pert hat at a becoming angle above a face that was white and set.

"Hi, where the dickens are you going?" demanded Bill sharply.

She leaned closer to the mirror to smooth her lipstick with the tip of her finger, and looked at him through the mirror.

"Back to Cypressville, for the rest of my leave," she told him clearly, her voice quite steady.

"Oh, but look here, Cathy—if only you'd told me the truth at the beginning. You had no right to marry me without telling me about this fellow Graham."

"There was nothing to tell, except that through circumstances over which neither of us had any control," she began, and saw the look in his eyes and broke off with a little weary gesture. "You're bitterly, insanely jealous, Bill—"

"I don't deny it. Why should I?" he cut in sharply.

"You shouldn't—I'd rather know it," she said quietly. "But I couldn't possibly be happy with a man who had so little faith in me, who believed in me so little that he could insult me by being jealous. That's not love, Bill. Love is—oh, faith and trust and knowing instinctively that no matter what one hears about the beloved, one doesn't believe it."

"Seems to me you're asking a heck of a lot from an ordinary everyday guy," said Bill grimly.

"I'm asking only what I give in return."

"Oh, poppycock!" snapped Bill. "You know darned well that if I turned up missing for a week, with some good-looking gal, you'd promptly think the worst."

"It's no good, Bill. We could argue from here to Doomsday and we couldn't reach any sort of understanding," she said wearily.

She drew off her wedding ring and laid it on the dressing table and picked up her bag.

"This is goodbye, Bill—for always."

"You'd rather have it like that—than to make an honest confession? I could forgive you, Cathy, if only you'd tell me the truth," said Bill swiftly.

Cathy stared at him. "But I've told you the truth," she protested.

"Like fun you have!" Bill was a stranger, ugly, almost frightening. "When did you see Graham last?"

"At the Officers' Club in Honolulu the day before I shoved off for the States," she told him faintly.

"And you expect me to believe there was nothing between you?" She covered from the stinging lash in his voice. And then she drew a deep, hard breath and straightened. Without a word she turned toward the door.

Bill said roughly, "Here—let me take your bag. I'll see you to the station."

But she evaded him. "Thanks, no, Bill. I'd prefer it like this." She went quickly out of the room and closed the door behind her with a finality that was a stab against her naked heart, and that had a sound of loneliness more desolate than anything she had ever heard in all her life.

Maggie was frankly and heartily glad to have her back. But she peered at Cathy sharply, once they were back in the neat little white house. "Looks to me like your vacation didn't pan out any too good," she said sternly. "You're looking more peaked than when you left."

"Civilian traveling is hard work," Cathy answered.

"Could be at that. Me, I wouldn't know," said Maggie. "All the traveling I do is from here to town and back, and that's the way I like it. Just a hick at heart."

Later, when they were having supper, Cathy made herself ask the question she knew Maggie was waiting to hear. Mentally she braced herself, and her tone was elaborately cool and casual when she spoke.

"Has Bill come home?" "Not so far as I know," answered Maggie, and her own tone was more casual than usual. "Way I heard it, the Dowager Queen has gone up to Richmond to meet him and drive home with him. Taking along her house guest, of course."

Cathy was a little puzzled by Maggie's tone.

"Oh, has Mrs. Kendall a house guest?"

"Sure—I'd say she was the Dowager Queen's selection for a wife for Bill—a suitable wife." Maggie waited for Cathy's answering grin as she emphasized the word.

For a moment Cathy sat very still and felt every drop of color drain out of her face. Maggie looked at her and then away and went on hurriedly.

"One of those society gals with a capital S that the Dowager Queen dotes on so much. A blonde, with a figure built for a sweater, and blue eyes and long golden curls hanging down on her shoulders—and a disposition that would cut glass—so gossip has it. Several of the business people in town have felt the edge of it. Seems she cut up quite a shindy in the drug store because Allen didn't carry the kind of perfume she wanted—at fifty dollars an ounce."

Cathy and Maggie under control now, and Maggie breathed a little more easily.

"She sounds—quite a person," said Cathy.

"Oh, she's a looker. Knock your eye out, and all that," admitted Maggie. "But I'd feel a little sorry for any fellow that married her—especially Bill."

Cathy's face tautened.

"Oh, I doubt if Bill will marry her," she said, and caught herself up swiftly. "Bill is quite capable of looking after himself in matters of that kind, I should think."

"He's a man, isn't he? And what man is capable of protecting himself in the clutches of a gal who looks like spun sugar and attar of roses—and behaves like—like stinkweed?" demanded Maggie.

Cathy made herself laugh and said, "Oh, well—that's Bill's business. You and I don't have to worry about it."

"I don't want to pry, chick," said Maggie after a moment. "But well, have you and Bill quarreled?"

Cathy was still for a moment and then she looked up at Maggie and said honestly, "Bill and I are—through, Maggie. All washed up—finished."

Maggie looked ready to burst into tears. But she studied the girl's white, set face for a moment and then she said gently, "Well, knowing how crazy you've always been about him, chick, I'm sorry. But I can't help feeling like maybe you're better off in the long run. With Edith Kendall dominating Bill's life, and not liking you—being married to Bill would be a dog's life."

"So let's just forget it, shall we?" said Cathy huskily. "I'd rather not talk about it any more."

"Well, of course not. Silly sort of subject anyway," agreed Maggie, and as she rose to clear the table, she put her arm about Cathy and gave her a little hug.

Cypressville was dead and dull and empty without Bill. Without even dreams of Bill. But Cathy realized that any place in the world would be dull and empty to her now. She would have shaken the dust of Cypressville from her feet and never come back again, but for Maggie. She barely remembered her own mother, and her father had died when she was too young to remember him. Maggie was her family, her beloved and adoring family. And having Cathy at home for a while meant a great deal to Maggie. For her to leave now would be cowardly, and it would be cruel to Maggie.

She looked forward with almost passionate eagerness to the expiration of her leave, when she would have a legitimate reason for leaving Cypressville. And perhaps when her next leave came up, she could get Maggie to come to her somewhere; she wanted never to come back to Cypressville again.

And so she filled her days at best she could: helping Maggie in the garden; helping with the canning of early fruits and vegetables; riding in to town to the movies, and to shop. She and Maggie went up to Atlanta for a week-end and when they came home, it was to find that Mrs. Kendall, Bill, and the house guest, Elaine Stovall, were in what Cypressville facetiously called "residence."

STARS SAY

For Friday, December 5

THIS is a most propitious and encouraging day for attacking plans and programs of major importance by direct, forthright and aggressive action. It is also a time of highly-stimulated energies and faculties, with initiative and fervor for putting over ambitious, constructive, possibly a fresh purpose or objective.

Organize towards this end, and work out difficult problems with skill, accuracy and energy. "Strike while the iron is hot" for concrete results and enduring progress.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find much incentive and stimulus for reaching out toward cherished goals along fresh and tangible lines, with initiative and enterprise.

The prospect of developing constructive and well-organized plans is encouraged by a bold spirit of creative energy along progressive and aggressive patterns, with physical and mental courage and determination in splendid impetus for concrete acts.

In this there should be ready support from associates, for sound, practical and meritorious projects. Strength and personal prestige as well, are under such constructive vibrations.

A child born on this day is under constructive rule for enthusiastic, energetic and determined forces and faculties, with a fine "will to win" against all obstacles.

TELL HIM WHERE IT IS

GIVING your partner an idea of how much strength your hand possesses—that is one purpose of a bid. But telling him where your strength is located is another important duty in many cases. That has the special value sometimes of enabling him to tell you where some of his strength is. Thus between you, the best declaration for playing the deal is located, as well as the advisable height of the contract.

The bidding given under the No. 1 sequence above is what actually occurred on this rubber bridge deal. South later regretted his pass of the 2-No Trumps, as he saw North take ten tricks after East led a heart. He had a reason for his pass—that he feared a diamond lead, and his hand was barely better than an utter minimum, whose strength was amply shown when he held clubs after the limited response of 1-No Trump.

North should not have blamed South for his pass at less than a game. Better bidding on his own part would have been something like that given in the second sequence. As soon as South heard from North that the diamond suit was plugged up in some fashion, his own bid of 1-No Trump would have made it clear that he could take full responsibility for the two unnamed major suits.

Hearing South bid 1-No Trump after the diamond call would have shown North then that his own hand had pretty fair surplus strength above the minimum for 1-Diamond—the extent of an extra Q J and 10, very useful cards opposite a sound No Trump bidder. He therefore could have raised comfortably to 2-No Trump. South thereupon could have noted that his holding was a bit better than absolute minimum for his first two bids, so should have stepped out the additional distance to game.

New Word for Tax Change | Reuther's Sweeping Victory
'Revision' Not 'Reduction' | Blow To Commies in CIO

WASHINGTON—Republican leaders in Congress are shifting away from the idea of a "quickie" tax reduction bill and are now inclined to support a tax revision measure with several features that will provide for an overall tax cut.

Taxpayers may look forward to a tax reduction vehicle in the regular session which will be different in several respects from the income tax cut bill twice vetoed by President Truman. The vetoed bill would have slashed income taxes 10.5 to 30 per cent.

Congressional leaders are still leaning toward a four billion dollar a year cut. The high price of the European aid program will tend to reduce this figure. But the rising government surplus will tend to counteract increased expenses abroad.

So the Republicans may come up with a four billion tax cut after all.

The House ways and means committee is at work on an omnibus tax revision bill, which Chairman Harold Knutson (R, Minnesota) wants to have ready when the regular session convenes.

GOP leaders have said that tax revision will be the first order of business in the regular session.

With high prices and the 1948 campaign in mind, the GOP may ask for an increase from $509 to $600 in income tax exemption for taxpayers and their dependents. The new tax bill is almost sure to permit married couples in all states to split their incomes to reduce taxes. At present, this is allowed in only 13 states. It may also contain a moderate income tax reduction.

● BLOW TO COMMUNISTS—CIO President Philip Murray's fight against the Communists in his organization was strengthened measurably by Walter Reuther's sweeping victory at the recent United Auto Workers' convention.

The UAW president can be expected to rout the left-wingers in his union and will stand shoulder to shoulder with Murray in the latter's efforts to purge Communist elements from positions of authority in other CIO affiliates.

Joseph Curran, president of the CIO National Maritime Union, also was victorious in a showdown fight with Communists in the NMU, and now will line up with Murray, Reuther and CIO Secretary-Treasurer James Carey to form a powerful right-wing bloc.

Murray's campaign against the leftists has become so aggressive that Carey will seek support for the Marshall European recovery plan at the forthcoming Paris meeting of the World Federation of Trade Unions, despite Russia's membership in that group.

Reuther is regarded by many as Murray's heir apparent to the CIO leadership. Insiders see no conflict between the two men. It is believed that Reuther will wait until the aging Murray voluntarily decides to retire, instead of advancing his own aspirations.

● DEWEY'S POKER GAME—Opponents of Thomas E. Dewey for the 1948 GOP presidential nomination appear doomed to failure in their efforts to force the New York governor to announce himself as a candidate.

Top Washington political observers believe that Dewey is determined to play his "poker game" and maintain his poker face down to the pre-convention stretch, perhaps carrying it to the convention floor.

In 1944, Dewey was nominated on the first ballot with only one dissenting vote. Already, however, three avowed candidates are in the race for the '48 nomination—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Gov. Earl Warren of California

EFFORT REWARDED

THE OLD fashioned incentive and reward pay system was revived to good effect recently in Michigan. When the automobile title division of a civil service department was faced with preparing address stencils for 2,000,000 car owners by Dec. 1, it found that a limited office force would have to handle about 175 names per worker per day. Many, however, were inexperienced and could manage only 50 names. It was decided to advance salaries from the basic $135 a month to $145 for 200 names struck off, and to $165 when 235 a day could be turned out.

The idea worked. Shortly 70 percent of the employees were meeting the 235 peak with consequent wage increases. Because of the expense avoided in shortening the project, about $78,000 will be saved taxpayers in operating costs.

It used to be that a job applicant expected to start at a modest pay level and win pay advance in relation to his own increased efficiency and production. With the modern system of fixed job lot wages for all workers without consideration of individual performance, the simple and logical device of incentive has been lost sight of. It is refreshing to learn that it has not entirely passed out. It is particularly noteworthy to find it functioning in a public office. Those taxpayers are doubtless surprised to hear about it, too.

REAL OPERATION RATHOLE

GOV. THOMAS Dewey would have the United States give active aid to Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese government in its war against the Communists. He would lend money to the government, and also turn over the military supplies that are now stored in the Philippines, Guam, Okinawa and Japan. Otherwise he fears that the Communists will conquer all China.

Dewey's fears are understandable. Unfortunately many Americans who have long striven to believe in Chiang Kai-Shek and his American-educated wife have reluctantly abandoned their faith. The government seems to be unspeakably reactionary and corrupt. Gen. Marshall and Gen. Wedemeyer, in their missions to China, tried to insist on some measure of reform as a condition of American aid. They failed. The Chiang officials said "Yes, yes", and did nothing whatsoever except to pocket what funds were turned over.

Aid to Europe has been described by some of its opponents as pouring money down a rathole. The Chiang government seems to be operating a larger and deeper rathole. Dewey admits this, but says that some of our help would get through and be used against the Communists. Would it be worth it?

Speaking of Christmas presents, it would not be unlike John L. Lewis' sense of the fitness of things to give the United States a Christmas gift in the form of a coal strike.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

For some weeks, we have been dealing with the movies; let us now turn to book reviews. This has become quite a business in recent years, some newspapers running a daily book review column by a sort of book columnist who pretends to read the most massive and erudite volumes in the course of an afternoon. That it cannot be done is obvious; for instance, Du Nouy's "Human Destiny" cannot be read like a Rex Stout murder.

I recently came across a review of Freda Utey's "Last Chance in China," by Harold R. Isaacs. Apparently, the editor of the "New York Times Book Review" operates like a town hall debate, getting someone who dislikes a book and its author to give the other side. Differing from the town hall, however, he permits no rebuttal, making it possible for an antagonistic review to kill a book.

Now Freda Utey is a well-informed lady, an ex-Communist who has lived in Russia and China and knows what she is talking about. Long before the present converts to the "Russian menace," who are hopping on the bandwagon of anti-Communism fast, Freda Utey recognized the danger and said it out loud. In those days that was a daring thing to do, because if one risked telling the truth, the galleons of propaganda roared upon the truth-teller with hatred.

So, Isaacs says that Utey's point of view is:

"... She believes that no present evil in the world, like the Greek monarchy, the Turkish dictatorship, or a corrupt Chinese officialdom, is comparable to the Russian evil; that nothing was more naive than the notions that led President Roosevelt at Yalta to sign an agreement that launched Russia on its new driver for power in Asia."

With that he disagrees. His view is: "We can share Miss Utey's urgent fear of Russian totalitarianism. But it is more difficult to see how we are going to exorcise the menace by joining hands with the Chiang Kai-Sheks and Chen Li-Fus of China or of any country. If these are the only possible allies of democracy, then Miss Utey's too is a program for darkness."

In other words, he holds that the United States can afford to pick and choose its allies and not use what is at hand. He makes the further point that Freda Utey says that it might cost us $15 billion to support Chiang. She actually said that $3 billion or $4 billion would probably suffice. She does make the point, however, that China's importance to us is so great that $10 billion or $15 billion would not be too great a cost. I have my own doubts about all these billions just as I have my doubts about the billions for Europe, but Isaacs clearly misquotes and misrepresents Miss Utey's position, which he has no right to do. I found another such misrepresentation but do not choose to give it space.

Mr. Isaacs does not favor Chiang Kai-Shek. Whom he does favor does not appear in his review, but the editor of the "New York Times Book Review," needing to decorate his page, to make it lively and attractive to the reader, fills it out with a photograph of "Soldiers of the Chinese Communist Army," who look like any other Chinese soldiers, neither better nor worse. He could have used a photograph of the Chinese government's army against whom these boys are in rebellion. They would have looked about the same.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

CATHY wasn't conscious of any process of thought by which she had reached a decision. She was conscious only that the decision was there, full-blown, ready to be put into action.

When Bill came in a little later, she had finished her packing, and at the dressing table she was setting her small, pert hat at a becoming angle above a face that was white and set.

"Hi, where the dickens are you going?" demanded Bill sharply.

She leaned closer to the mirror to smooth her lipstick with the tip of her finger, and looked at him through the mirror.

"Back to Cypressville, for the rest of my leave," she told him clearly, her voice quite steady.

"Oh, but look here, Cathy—if only you told me the truth at the beginning. You had no right to marry me without telling me about this fellow Graham."

"There was nothing to tell, except that through circumstances over which neither of us had any control," she began, and saw the look in his eyes and broke off with a little weary gesture. "You're bitterly, insanely jealous, Bill."

"I don't deny it. Why should I?" he cut in sharply.

"You shouldn't—I'd rather know it," she said quietly. "But I couldn't possibly be happy with a man who had so little faith in me, who believed in me so little that he could insult me by being jealous. That's not love, Bill. Love is—oh, faith and trust and knowing instinctively that no matter what one hears about the beloved, one doesn't believe it."

"Seems to me you're asking a heck of a lot from an ordinary everyday guy," said Bill grimly.

"I'm asking only what I give in return."

"Oh, poppycock!" snapped Bill. "You know darned well that if I turned up missing for a week, with some good-looking gal, you'd promptly think the worst."

"It's no good, Bill. We could argue from here to Doomsday and we couldn't reach any sort of understanding," she said wearily.

She drew off her wedding ring and laid it on the dressing table and picked up her bag.

"This is goodbye, Bill—for always."

"You'd rather have it like that than to make an honest confession? I could forgive you, Cathy, if only you'd tell me the truth," said Bill swiftly.

"But I've told you the truth," she protested.

"Like fun you have!" Bill was a stranger, ugly, almost frightening. "When did you see Graham last?"

"At the Officers' Club in Honolulu the day before I shoved off for the States," she told him faintly.

"And you expect me to believe there was nothing between you?" She covered from the stinging lash in his voice. And then she drew a deep, hard breath and straightened. Without a word she turned toward the door.

Bill said roughly, "Here—let me take your bag. I'll see you to the station."

But she evaded him.

"Thanka, no, Bill. I'd prefer it like this." She went quickly out of the room and closed the door behind her with a finality that was a stab against her naked heart, and that had a sound of loneliness more desolate than anything she had ever heard in all her life.

Maggie was frankly and heartily glad to have her back. But she peered at Cathy sharply, once they were back in the neat little white house. "Looks to me like your vacation didn't pan out any too good," she said sternly. "You're looking more peaked than when you left."

"Civilian traveling is hard work," Cathy answered.

"Could be at that. Me, I wouldn't know," said Maggie. "All the traveling I do is from here to town and back, and that's the way I like it. Just a hick at heart."

Later, when they were having supper, Cathy made herself ask the question she knew Maggie was waiting to hear. Mentally she braced herself, and her tone was elegant and cool and casual when she spoke.

"Has Bill come home?"

"Not so far as I know," answered Maggie, and her own tone was more casual than usual. "Way I heard it, the Dowager Queen has gone up to Richmond to meet him and drive home with him. Taking along her house guest, of course."

Cathy was a little puzzled by Maggie's tone.

"Oh, has Mrs. Kendall a house guest?"

"Sure—I'd say she was the Dowager Queen's selection for a wife for Bill—a suitable wife." Maggie waited for Cathy's answering grin as she emphasized the word.

For a moment Cathy sat very still and felt every drop of color drain out of her face. Maggie looked at her and then away and went on hurriedly.

"One of those society gals with a capital S that the Dowager Queen dotes on so much. A blonde, with a figure built for a sweater, and blue eyes and long golden curls hanging down on her shoulders—and a disposition that would out-glass—so gossip has it. Several of the business people in town have felt the edge of it. Seems she cut up quite a shindy in the drug store because Allen didn't carry the kind of perfume she wanted—at fifty dollars an ounce."

Cathy had herself under control now, and Maggie breathed a little more easily.

"She sounds—quite a person," said Cathy.

"Oh, she's a looker. Knock your eye out, and all that," admitted Maggie. "But I'd feel a mite sorry for any fellow that married her—especially Bill."

Cathy's face tautened.

would like, and she or he can choose a gift they really want, whether it is a bridal present, a birthday or Christmas gift.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday celebrant is scrupulously honest, sincere and frank. Your quiet, unassuming manner makes you a general favorite and many true friends. You like to dress well, are proud and careful of your appearance, and enjoy the out-of-doors.

Choose a congenial mate, marry young, and you will be happy. The day is doubtful concerning bills, payments, taxes, insurance, loans and papers. Better reasoning and understanding will prevail in the evening. Your fortunes will expand in the next twelve months but guard against nerve trouble through overwork. Refrain from making sudden changes, especially in love and domestic affairs, and beware of deception. Born on this date, a child will be very clever, far-sighted, idealistic, psychic, sincere and generous, but a bit nervy. Good fortune above the average is predicted.

"The Authority on Authorities"

TELL HIM WHERE IT IS

GIVING your partner an idea of how much strength your hand possesses—that is one purpose of a bid. But telling him where your strength is located is another important duty in many cases. That has the special value sometimes of enabling him then to tell you where some of his strength is. Thus between you, the best declaration for playing the deal is located, as well as the advisable height of the contract.

1. ♠ Pass 2. ♠ 1NT Pass
3. ♠ 2NT Pass 4. ♠ 3NT Pass

The bidding given under the No. 1 sequence above is what actually occurred on this rubber bridge deal. South later regretted his pass of the 2-No Trumps, as he saw North take ten tricks after East led a heart. He had a reason for his pass—that he feared a diamond lead, and his hand was barely better than an utter minimum, whose strength was amply shown when he rebid clubs after the limited response of 1-No Trump.

If West had bid the red suits vigorously and leads the diamond A, how should South play for 5-Spades?

"Oh, I doubt if Bill will marry her," she said, and caught herself up swiftly. "Bill is quite capable of looking after himself in matters of that kind, I should think."

"He's a man, isn't he? And what man is capable of protecting himself in the clutches of a gal who looks like spun sugar and stinks like stinkweed?" demanded Maggie.

Cathy made herself laugh and said, "Oh, well—that's Bill's business. You and I don't have to worry about it."

"I don't want to pry, chick," said Maggie after a moment. "But—well, have you and Bill quarreled?"

Cathy was still for a moment and then she looked up at Maggie and said honestly, "Bill and I are through, Maggie. All washed up—finished."

Maggie looked ready to burst into tears. But she studied the girl's white, set face for a moment and then she said gently, "Well, knowing how crazy you've always been about him, chick, I'm sorry. But I can't help feeling like maybe you're better off in the long run. With Edith Kendall dominating Bill's life and not liking you—being married to Bill would be a dog's life."

"So let's just forget it, shall we?" said Cathy huskily. "I'd rather not talk about it any more."

"Well, of course not. Silly sort of subject anyway," agreed Maggie, and as she rose to clear the table, she put her arm about Cathy and gave her a little hug.

Cypressville was dead and dull and empty without Bill, without even dreams of Bill. But Cathy realized that any place in the world would be dull and empty to her now. She would have shaken the dust of Cypressville from her feet and never come back again, but for Maggie. She barely remembered her own mother, and her father had died when she was too young to remember him. Maggie was her family, her beloved and adoring family. And having Cathy at home for a while meant a great deal to Maggie. For to leave now would be cowardly, and it would be cruel to Maggie.

She looked forward with almost passionate eagerness to the expiration of her leave, when she would have a legitimate reason for leaving Cypressville. And perhaps when her next leave came up, she could get Maggie to come to her somewhere; she wanted never to come back to Cypressville again.

And so she filled her days as best she could; helping Maggie in the garden; helping with the canning of early fruits and vegetables; riding in to town to the movies, and to shop. She and Maggie went up to Atlanta for a week-end and when they came home, it was to find that Mr. Kendall, Bill, and the house guest, Elaine Stovall, were in what Cypressville facetiously called "residence."

New Word for Tax Change Reuther's Sweeping Victory
'Revision' Not 'Reduction' Blow To Commies in CIO

WASHINGTON—Republican leaders in Congress are shifting away from the idea of a "quickie" tax reduction bill and are now inclined to support a tax revision measure with several features that will provide for an overall tax cut.

Taxpayers may look forward to a tax reduction vehicle in the regular session which will be different in several respects from the income tax cut bill twice vetoed by President Truman. The vetoed bill would have slashed income taxes 10.5 to 30 per cent.

Congressional leaders are still leaning toward a four billion dollar a year cut. The high price of the European aid program will tend to reduce this figure. But the rising government surplus will tend to counteract increased expenses abroad. So the Republicans may come up with a four billion tax cut after all.

The House ways and means committee is at work on an omnibus tax revision bill, which Chairman Harold Knutson (R, Minnesota), wants to have ready when the regular session convenes. GOP leaders have said that tax revision will be the first order of business in the regular session.

With high prices and the 1948 campaign in mind, the GOP may ask for an increase from $500 to $600 in income tax exemption for taxpayers and their dependents. The new tax bill is almost sure to permit married couples in all states to split their incomes to reduce taxes. At present, this is allowed in only 13 states. It may also contain a moderate income tax reduction.

Chapel Choir To Sing Here In Sacred Christmas Candlelight Concert

Program Set For Event

Chapel Choir of Capital University, consisting of 75 voices under the direction of Prof. Ellis E. Snyder, will give a sacred concert at 8 p. m. Friday evening in the auditorium of the Circleville high school. The "Candlelight Christmas" concert is sponsored by members of Trinity Lutheran junior choir.

The program will be divided into four parts with the first to open with "Come Shepherds, Come", a Tyrolean carol arranged by Harold Marryott; "Laudate Dominum in Tympanis", Palestrina and arranged by Maynard Klein; "Glory Be To God", Rachmaninoff; "Lift Up Your Heads", Andreas Hammer-schmidt and composed by M. Lundquist.

The second group consists of "A Babe Is Born", a 15th century carol, arranged to music by Don Halin; "On The Mountain", folk song from Upper Silesia, set to music by Norton Luvaas; "A Joyous Christmas Song", with Margarette Hokanson, arranger of the Norwegian carol; "Glory Be To God On High", by Edwin Liemohn.

For their third unit of songs they will sing, "Built On The Rock", Lindeman, arranged by Luther Heyde; "Wonders Are Wrought", F. Hallus Christian-son; "Benedictus", Paladihe, arranged by O. Christiansen and "Praise To The Lord" by F. Hallus Christiansen.

Their concluding group of songs will include "The Angel's Song" by Tschernokov; "We Saw Him Sleeping", Booth; "Lullaby", Mozart, and "The Shepherd's Song" by Clarence Dickinson.

Club Slates Christmas Party

Mrs. Mary Stevens, Mrs. George Eitel Jr., Mrs. Robert Barnes, Mrs. Mason Buskirk, Barbara Eitel, Jackie Turner and Ruth Grubb joined members of the Magic Sewing club for their regular meeting Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. John Grubb, South Pickaway street.

Games were played during the evening with prizes awarded to Mrs. Roger Lozier and Mrs. Noble E. Barr. A dessert course was served at attractively appointed tables arranged in the recreation room of the hostess' home. Final plans were slated for the annual Christmas party, December 19 when the group will have a covered dish supper at 6:30 p. m. in the home of Mr and Mrs. Barr.

Girl Scouts Plan Uniform Exchange

Brownies and intermediate Girl Scouts will be given the opportunity for those who have outgrown their present uniforms to hand them out to a smaller girl on December 12 in headquarters, at 7:30 p. m. when they will have a uniform exchange.

Mrs. Bishop Given, Mrs. Dwight Steele, Mrs. J. I. Smith and Mrs. Enid Denham, Scout public relations committee members, are in charge of the project which will include uniforms, belts, scarfs, socks, hats, etc. All articles must be cleaned and pressed with the name of the present owner on each. These articles must be in headquarters by Monday.

Christmas Party

Mrs. Wayne Fee will be hostess to members of the Union Guild for their Christmas party Wednesday at 1 p. m. in her home, Wayne township. She will be assisted by Mrs. Thomas Wardell, Mrs. Lee Winks, Mrs. Garland Minor and Mrs. Gayle Linton.

Before arranging cut flowers, give them a "hardening" treatment. Put them in a deep pail or bowl so that the water reaches to at least three inches of the flower heads. With this treatment the flowers will not wilt so quickly after they have been arranged.

Youth Plan Sharing Holiday Spirit

"One good turn deserves another" was the theme of the meeting conducted by member of the Circleville and Pickaway county Youth Canteen group when they made Christmas plans at their meeting in the Canteen Thursday evening.

They planned to show their appreciation for all the good that has been bestowed upon them by sponsoring a Christmas party for all the children in the Pickaway County home.

Jean Heine was named chairman, with Delores Elsea, Bob Boggs, Dick Fullen and Bob Johnson selected as her assistants to make arrangements for the affair. Each Canteen member will take gifts when they go to the Home on December 23. Following the Christmas party, they will return to the Canteen for refreshments.

The younger set also discussed plans for a New Year's eve party in the Canteen. Mrs. Fred Boggs is leader of the Canteen youngsters and supervises their recreational programs and meetings.

Societies Have All-Day Meeting

Nineteen members and their guests of the Ladies Aid and Missionary Society of the Israel Lutheran church, Amanda, were guests for a meeting in the home of Mrs. Noble E. Barr, Town street.

A covered dish luncheon was served at the noon hour. Mrs. Ray Griner, leader of the afternoon program, opened the meeting with group singing. Mrs. Harold Rienchild read selections from the Scriptures. Mrs. Griner conducted roll call and submitted the secretarial report. A prayer in unison with the missionary benediction concluded the program.

During the social hour names of "secret sisters" were revealed and Christmas gifts were exchanged. Entertainment was under the direction of Mrs. Albert Fausnaugh and Miss Anna Marion. Contest winners were Miss Mae Smith and Mrs. Nora Reinchild. Next meeting will be January 7 in the home of Miss Stella Missie, with Mrs. Frank Sherburne as program leader.

Youths Present For Y.F. Meeting

Ten members of the Morris Evangelical United Brethren Youth Fellowship and their guests were present for the December meeting in the home of Marvane and Robert Arledge. Miss Barbara England joined the group as a new member.

During the business meeting, the group decided to purchase membership pins and new prayer posters for the month were selected. Barbara England read from the Scriptures. Readings were presented by Ray Strawser, Maxine Poling and Mary Ann Drake. Donald Metzler played a trumpet solo. Darlene and Glenn Metzler sang vocal duets. Mrs. Harry Arledge assisted her sons in serving refreshments.

PINEAPPLE IS BACK!

Pineapple adds a piquant, refreshing flavor to your favorite cheese cake.

By BETTY NEWTON

Shopping has again become fun—now that many foods are back on our grocer's shelf—and one of the most welcome items is pineapple. In case you have just about forgotten how to use it, here are a few suggestions.

Crushed pineapple is used in the cheese cake, while both the turnovers and spiced pineapple call for the sliced variety. Turnovers make a dessert new to many families—and are especially good when served with a sauce made of thickened pineapple syrup. Something to "pep up" your next baked ham or pork roast is spiced pineapple. It is tempting when served slightly warm as a dessert, too.

Pineapple Cheese Cake

4 Eggs
1 C. cream
1 C. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
2 1/2 cups fine cottage cheese
2 tsp. grated lemon rind
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 C. crushed pineapple
Zestback crust

Beat egg yolks until thick and light-colored. Add sugar gradually and beat thoroughly. Fold in cottage cheese, cream and pineapple. Add lemon juice and rind. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into prepared crust and bake at 325 degrees about 1 hour.

Zestback Crust

2 C. zestback crumbs
1/4 C. sugar
1/4 C. melted shortening
Mix crumbs with sugar and melted shortening. Pat in a well-greased spring form to form a crust. Pour in cheese mixture and bake as directed.

Spiced Pineapple

1 1/2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
6 slices drained canned pineapple
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ginger
1/4 tsp. cloves
1/4 C. pineapple syrup

Melt butter or margarine in a heavy skillet. Add slices of pineapple, sauté until lightly browned on both sides. Combine salt, ginger and cloves with the pineapple syrup, drained from pineapple. Pour over fruit. Simmer slowly 5 minutes. Serve warm or cold for dessert or as a meat accompaniment.

Pineapple Turnovers

1 No. 2 1/2 can sliced pineapple
2 C. flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. sugar
4 Tbsp. shortening
1/4 C. milk
Cinnamon, sugar, butter

Sift flour, salt and baking powder and sugar together. Cut in shortening until fine. Add milk. Mix well. Knead lightly and roll 1/4 inch thick on floured board. Cut in circles about 5 inches in diameter and place on a baking sheet. On one side of the circle lay half a slice of pineapple, dot with butter and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Fold other side of biscuit circle over the pineapple. Dampen edges and press together. Bake at 425 degrees about 15 minutes or until nicely browned. Serve warm with sweetened milk containing cinnamon, or a sauce of thickened pineapple syrup, butter, lemon rind, and nutmeg.

WS Of WS Group Hears Articles On Yule Customs

Miss Clara Latheway was hostess Thursday evening to members of Women's Society of World Service of the First Evangelical United Brethren church in her home, Watt street.

Mrs. J. E. Millirons conducted the devotional period which opened with the group singing "Away In A Manger". Mrs. Carlos Brown, program leader, read Scripture selections. In unison they sang, "O Little Town Of Bethlehem". Prayers were offered by Mrs. Ralph Bennington and Mrs. Clarence Radcliff.

Mrs. Brown followed the December topic, "International", for the evening's program. They heard several stories pertaining to Christmas customs as related by foreign missionaries of their respective countries and those of home missions.

Taking part in the readings were Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood, Mrs. John Stevenson, Mrs. George Gerhardt, Mrs. Millirons, Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson, Miss Gladys Noggle and Mrs. Ross Kirkpatrick.

The program concluded as the group sang "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear." Benediction was pronounced by Mrs. Ralph Long. Routine business was discussed and reports were submitted by various standing committee members.

Forty-three members and guests were served refreshments.

Plans Set For Decorations

A regular business meeting was conducted by members of the Circleville Home and Hospital when they met Thursday afternoon in the home of its president, Mrs. Charles H. May, South Court street.

They made plans to mark the holiday season with Christmas decorations and a tree in the East Main street and South Scioto street homes. The board will prepare special treats for all patients on Christmas day.

Dance

Fritz Saenger and his orchestra from Columbus will furnish dance music for the bi-monthly American Legion dance Saturday from 9 until 12 in the Legion home, East Main street.

Games were played during the evening with prizes awarded to Mrs. Roger Lozier and Mrs. Noble E. Barr. A dessert course was served at attractively appointed tables arranged in the recreation room of the hostess' home. Final plans were slated for the annual Christmas party, December 19 when the group will have a covered dish supper at 6:30 p. m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barr.

Girl Scouts Plan Uniform Exchange

Brownies and intermediate Girl Scouts will be given the opportunity for those who have outgrown their present uniforms to hand them out to a smaller girl on December 12 in headquarters, at 7:30 p. m. when they will have a uniform exchange.

Mrs. Bishop Given, Mrs. Dwight Steele, Mrs. J. I. Smith and Mrs. Enid Denham, Scout public relations committee members, are in charge of the project which will include uniforms, belts, scarfs, hats, etc. All articles must be cleaned and pressed with the name of the present owner on each. These articles must be in headquarters by Monday.

Christmas Party

Mrs. Wayne Fee will be hostess to members of the Union Guild for their Christmas party Wednesday at 1 p. m. in her home, Wayne township. She will be assisted by Mrs. Thomas Wardell, Mrs. Lee Winks, Mrs. Garland Minor and Mrs. Gayle Linton.

Before arranging cut flowers, give them a "hardening" treatment. Put them in a deep pail or bowl so that the water reaches to at least three inches of the flower heads. With this treatment the flowers will not wilt so quickly after they have been arranged.

Christmas Theme Predominates Meeting

Members of the Altar society of St. Joseph's Catholic church held their regular monthly meeting in the Recreation center, Wednesday evening. Mrs. Margaret Shadley, president, conducted the business meeting and received routine reports. It was announced that a Tridium will be conducted for the members of the society by Rev. Father Edward J. Reidy, pastor. The services will open at 7:30 Friday evening and conclude with the 8 o'clock Mass on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Edwin Tingley, program chairman, presented Mrs. Frank Susa who read the stories, "Christmas Giving", by Mrs. Glenn Frank, and "The Conqueror's Christmas" by Gordon White.

Refreshments were served to 22 members at one long decorated table centered with a lighted Christmas tree. As the group was being seated, Miss Eleanor Snyder led them in singing "Silent Night".

The committee in charge of the meeting was composed of Mrs. Tingley, Mrs. Paul Hang, Mrs. Susa, Mrs. Jerry Hickey, Miss Snyder, Mrs. Henry Butts, Mrs. Tom Lake and Miss Rose Good.

Youth Plan Sharing Holiday Spirit

"One good turn deserves another" was the theme of the meeting conducted by member of the Circleville and Pickaway county Youth Canteen group when they made Christmas plans at their meeting in the Canteen Thursday evening.

They planned to show their appreciation for all the good that has been bestowed upon them by sponsoring a Christmas party for all the children in the Pickaway County home.

Jean Heine was named chairman, with Delores Elsea, Bob Boggs, Dick Fullen and Bob Johnson selected as her assistants to make arrangements for the affair. Each Canteen member will take gifts when they go to the Home on December 23. Following the Christmas party, they will return to the Canteen for refreshments.

The younger set also discussed plans for a New Year's eve party in the Canteen. Mrs. Fred Boggs is leader of the Canteen youngsters and supervises their recreational programs and meetings.

Societies Have All-Day Meeting

Nineteen members and their guests of the Ladies Aid and Missionary Society of the Israel Lutheran church, Amanda, were guests for a meeting in the home of Mrs. Noble E. Barr, Town street.

A covered dish luncheon was served at the noon hour. Mrs. Ray Griner, leader of the afternoon program, opened the meeting with group singing. Mrs. Harold Riechle read selections from the Scriptures. Mrs. Griner conducted roll call and submitted the secretarial report. A prayer in unison with the missionary benediction concluded the program.

During the social hour names of "secret sisters" were revealed and Christmas gifts were exchanged. Entertainment was under the direction of Mrs. Albert Fausnaugh and Miss Anna Marion. Contest winners were Miss Mae Smith and Mrs. Nora Reinchild. Next meeting will be January 7 in the home of Miss Stella Messie, with Mrs. Frank Sherburne as program leader.

Youths Present For Y.F. Meeting

Ten members of the Morris Evangelical United Brethren Youth Fellowship and their guests were present for the December meeting in the home of Marvene and Robert Arledge. Miss Barbara England joined the group as a new member.

During the business meeting, the group decided to purchase membership pins and new prayer posters for the month were selected. Barbara England read from the Scriptures. Readings were presented by Ray Strawser, Maxine Poling and Mary Ann Drake. Donald Metzler played a trumpet solo. Darlene and Glenn Metzler sang vocal duets. Mrs. Harry Arledge assisted her sons in serving refreshments.

For a supply of readily utilizable minerals, five cups of milk daily will supply enough calcium to meet the present recommended allowance for an adolescent, even if no other source of the mineral is provided.

PINEAPPLE IS BACK!

Pineapple adds a piquant, refreshing flavor to your favorite cheese cake.

By BETTY NEWTON

Shopping has again become fun—now that many foods are back on our grocer's shelf—and one of the most welcome items is pineapple. In case you have just about forgotten how to use it, here are a few suggestions.

Crushed pineapple is used in the cheese cake, while both the turnovers and spiced pineapple call for the sliced variety. Turnovers make a dessert new to many families—and are especially good when served with a sauce made of thickened pineapple syrup. Something to "pep up" your next baked ham or pork roast is spiced pineapple. It is tempting when served slightly warm as a dessert, too.

Pineapple Cheese Cake

4 Eggs
1 C. cream
1 C. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
2 1/2 C. fine cottage cheese
2 tsp. grated lemon rind
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 C. crushed pineapple
Zweiback crust

Beat egg yolks until thick and light-colored. Add sugar gradually and beat thoroughly. Fold in cottage cheese, cream and pineapple. Add lemon juice and rind. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into prepared crust and bake at 325 degrees about 1 hour.

Zweiback Crust

2 C. zweiback crumbs
1/4 C. sugar
1/4 C. melted shortening
Mix crumbs with sugar and melted shortening. Pat in a well-greased spring form to form a crust. Pour in cheese mixture and bake as directed.

Spiced Pineapple

1 1/2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
6 slices drained canned pineapple
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ginger
1/4 tsp. cloves
1/2 C. pineapple syrup

Melt butter or margarine in a heavy skillet. Add slices of pineapple on both sides. Combine salt, ginger and cloves with the pineapple syrup, drained from pineapple. Pour over fruit. Simmer slowly 5 minutes. Serve warm or cold for dessert or as a meat accompaniment.

Pineapple Turnovers

1 No. 2 1/2 can sliced pineapple
2 C. flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. sugar
4 Tbsp. shortening
1/2 C. milk
Cinnamon, sugar, butter

Sift flour, salt and baking powder and sugar together. Cut in shortening until fine. Add milk. Mix well. Knead lightly and roll 1/4 inch thick on floured board. Cut in circles about 5 inches in diameter and place on a baking sheet. On one side of the circle lay half a slice of pineapple, dot with butter and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Fold other side of biscuit circle over the pineapple. Dampen edges and press together. Bake at 425 degrees about 15 minutes or until nicely browned. Serve warm with sweetened milk containing cinnamon, or a sauce of thickened pineapple syrup, butter, lemon rind, and nutmeg.

WS Of WS Group Hears Articles' On Yule Customs

Miss Clara Lathouse was hostess Thursday evening to members of Women's Society of World Service of the First Evangelical United Brethren church in her home, Watt street.

Mrs. J. E. Millirons conducted the devotional period which opened with the group singing "Away In A Manger". Mrs. Carlos Brown, program leader, read Scripture selections. In unison they sang, "O Little Town Of Bethlehem". Prayers were offered by Mrs. Ralph Bennington and Mrs. Clarence Radcliff.

Mrs. Brown followed the December topic, "International", for the evening's program. They heard several stories pertaining to Christmas customs as related by foreign missionaries of their respective countries and those of home missions.

Taking part in the readings were Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood, Mrs. John Stevenson, Mrs. George Gerhardt, Mrs. Millirons, Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson, Miss Gladys Noggle and Mrs. Ross Kirkpatrick.

The program concluded as the group sang "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear." Benediction was pronounced by Mrs. Ralph Long. Routine business was discussed and reports were submitted by various standing committee members.

Forty-three members and guests were served refreshments.

Plans Set For Decorations

A regular business meeting was conducted by members of the board of management of the Circleville Home and Hospital when they met Thursday afternoon in the home of its president, Mrs. Charles H. May, South Court street.

They made plans to mark the holiday season with Christmas decorations and a tree in the East Main street and South Court street homes. The board will prepare special treats for all patients on Christmas day.

Dance

by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ronald Nau, Mrs. Roy Groce and Mrs. Florence Noggle.

Rotarians Hear
8 Local Chiefs

An insight into the workings of the plant of the Container Corporation of America, which has been in operation in Circleville 64 years, was given the Rotary club following a noon luncheon, Thursday, in the Pickaway Arms. Eight spokesmen for the company attended the meeting.

Norbert L. Cochran, manager of the factory, explaining procedure in the plant, said it was founded in 1883 and that it has been in the process of being rebuilt since he came to Circleville in 1939.

Cochran said the personnel includes 18 department heads. Seven department chiefs were present and each explained the functioning of his division.

Frank Wantz explained that as superintendent of the chemistry department he has supervision over production.

Vernon L. Hawkes is office manager and has charge of straw buying. He said wheat straw primarily is used, along with some oats straw, and that 18,000 tons are on hand in the plant at all times.

HAWKES explained that 32,000 tons of straw are used annually, plus 3,000 tons of scrap paper. Materials used yearly are valued at $750,000.

H. Lynn Baughman holds the post of personnel manager. He supervises the hiring of workers, maintains all records of employment, directs monthly safety meetings, supervises publication of a house organ, has charge of group insurance, the retirement plan, annual vacations, etc.

As mechanical and electrical engineer, Arthur McCord has general supervision of plant maintenance. He superintends all major installations. McCord said new switchboards and a new turbine are now being installed in the factory.

Supervising maintenance, Henry Schroeder said his task is to solve maintenance problems and to see that 150 motors are kept humming. He has 24 assistants.

Arthur E. Wagar, an electrical engineer, has the title of power supervisor. He said the plant receives 100 tons of coal daily. Wagar said the plant consumes 1,500 gallons of water per minute and that the Container factory uses as much electricity as all the rest of Circleville combined.

RICHARD M. MORRIS is chief chemist and directs work in the plant's research laboratory where all materials are tested.

The annual "Rotary Ann" party will be the feature of next week's program of the local Rotary club.

C'MON BIRDIE, LOOK!

WICHITA, Kans., Dec. 5.—Albert Dare, winner of a national snapshot contest with a close-up of a baby sparrow sitting on a twig, had difficulty getting the shot. He said that when he approached to within two feet, the sparrow showed no fright but nonchalantly hopped to his arm. He put the bird back on the twig and again tried to focus his camera—with the same result. Finally he focused the camera, then set the bird back on the limb and quickly snapped his picture.

Teacher's Pet

IN A CLASS by himself is "Peter," a bulldog "student" at St. Ambrose school, Los Angeles, for 5 years. He's intelligent, but not too bright for he's still in the First Grade. He started sitting at his private desk when his mistress, Patricia Kelly, was a student. (International)

New Low Cost Way to Make 4 Bushels of Feed Equal 5 in Meat or Milk Production
Greater Fly Wheel Momentum Makes New Hammer Mill Run Smoother and 1/3 Faster

Yes, folks, here's a Hammer Mill that sure puts new zip into feed grinding. Think of it! It smashes grain or roughage with from 80 to 280 12-ton blows every second. Let us show you how this greater fly-wheel momentum, larger screen area, Timken bearings and lots more mechanical improvements give you faster, smoother, longer-life feed grinding performance. Then you can figure how much it will save you on feed grinding cost.

Rotarians Hear 8 Local Chiefs

An insight into the workings of the plant of the Container Corporation of America, which has been in operation in Circleville 64 years, was given the Rotary club following a noon luncheon, Thursday, in the Pickaway Arms. Eight spokesmen for the company attended the meeting.

Norbert L. Cochran, manager of the factory, explaining procedure in the plant, said it was founded in 1883 and that it has been in the process of being rebuilt since he came to Circleville in 1939.

Cochran said the personnel includes 18 department heads. Seven department chiefs were present and each explained the functioning of his division.

Frank Wanzel explained that as superintendent of the chemistry department he has supervision over production.

Vernon L. Hawkes is office manager and has charge of straw buying. He said wheat straw primarily is used, along with some oats straw, and that 18,000 tons are on hand in the plant at all times.

HAWKES explained that 32,000 tons of straw are used annually, plus 2,000 tons of scrap paper. Materials used yearly are valued at $750,000.

H. Lynn Baughman holds the post of personnel manager. He supervises the hiring of workers, maintains all records of employment, directs monthly safety meetings, supervises publication of a house organ, has charge of group insurance, the retirement plan, annual vacations, etc.

As mechanical and electrical engineer, Arthur McCord has general supervision of plant maintenance. He superintends all major installations. McCord said new switchboards and a new turbine are now being installed in the factory.

Supervising maintenance, Henry Schroeder said his task is to solve maintenance problems and to see that 150 motors are kept humming. He has 24 assistants.

Arthur E. Wagar, an electrical engineer, has the title of power supervisor. He said the plant receives 100 tons of coal daily. Wagar said the plant consumes 1,500 gallons of water per minute and that the Container factory uses as much electricity as all the rest of Circleville combined.

RICHARD M. MORRIS is chief chemist and directs work in the plant's research laboratory where all materials are tested.

The annual "Rotary Ann" party will be the feature of next week's program of the local Rotary club.

C'MON BIRDIE, LOOK!

WICHITA, Kans., Dec. 5—Albert Dare, winner of a national snapshot contest with a close-up of a baby sparrow sitting on a twig, had difficulty getting the shot. He said that when he approached to within two feet, the sparrow showed no fright but nonchalantly hopped to his arm.

He put the bird back on the twig and again tried to focus his camera—with the same result. Finally he focused the camera, then set the bird back on the limb and quickly snapped his picture.

New Low Cost Way to Make 4 Bushels of Feed Equal 5 in Meat or Milk Production

Greater Fly Wheel Momentum Makes New Hammer Mill Run Smoother and 1/3 Faster

Yes, folks, here's a Hammer Mill that sure puts new zip into feed grinding. Think of it! It smashes grain or roughage with from 80 to 250 blows every second. Let us show you how this greater fly-wheel momentum, larger screen area, Timken bearings and lots more mechanical improvements give you faster, smoother, longer-life feed grinding performance. Then you can figure how much it will save you on feed grinding cost.

Tiger '5' Recalls Last Year

Cavaliers Gave Locals 2 Defeats

Tonight the Red and Black basketball team of Circleville high school sets forth on the Roll-n-Bowl court to test its strength against the powerful Chillicothe five. Since both teams open their seasons simultaneously, it is difficult to predict the outcome.

There is to be no all-year captain for the Circleville Tigers this year, but a different captain will be chosen for each game. Coach Dorwin Peer said the captain for tonight's game will be one of the senior players.

The Cavaliers, who severely trimmed the Circleville squad 71-23 and 81-23 in two encounters last season, have elected John Shearow, 6-foot-4-inch center as their captain.

Coach Ed Alexinas of the Blue and White said that his starting lineup probably would find Ed Wagner and Dave Kings as the forwards; Shearow at center; and Dick Arledge and Kent Kirkwood as the guards. Two of these men are lettermen from last year, while the others all saw action on the junior varsity team.

PEER's starters are expected to be Bob Eccard and Jack Young at forwards, Bob Shaw at center, with Paul Smallwood and "Red" Crawford at the guards. Dean Smallwood probably will see plenty of action in Young's spot during the scrap, and Tom Eveland, Ralph Starkey, Roy Huffer, John Payne, Paul Kraft, and Marcus Albright will be on hand as other subs.

Circleville's reserves are ready to pit their power against the reserves of the Blue and White tonight, too. Coach Steve Brudzinski said his starting lineup probably would be "Sandy" Hill, Jim Starkey, John Valentine, Abe Rihl and Don Mancini, with support from Ted Sims, Roy Palmer and Richard Stein.

The doors of the Roll-n-Bowl will open at 6:15 p. m. with the reserve tilt booked for 7 p. m. All tickets purchased at the gate will cost 50 cents.

If students wish to attend at reduced rates they must have purchased tickets in advance of the game at the high school.

The game tonight is to be broadcast over station WBEX, Chillicothe.

Coaches Plan All-Star '11'

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Names of candidates for the Ohio High School Football Coaches Association's All-Ohio football team will be tossed into the cauldron tonight.

District representatives of the coaches association plan to begin their selection meeting after seeing the Bucks open their cage season.

Also on the agenda is selection of a site for the 1948 high school All-Star football game, with Canton and Lockland as leading candidates. Coaches and playing squads also will be chosen for the midsummer classic.

Totes Mandatory On Mile Track

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Ohio's mile race tracks must install totalizers this year, or else.

O. C. Belt, chairman of the State Racing Commission, declared today that the "or else" means the tracks won't operate. Belt repeated a warning that the "totes" must be installed at the tracks if their operators expect to get dates from the commission for the 1948 season.

The regulation calling for installation of the automatic betting machines was adopted some time ago, but extensions have been granted in the past because shortages of materials made the machines scarce.

TONIGHT: OPERATION BOP

Fate Marks Jersey Joe Walcott For Violence, Alias Joe Louis

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Target for tonight and guest star on the Joe Louis Chin-You-Love-To-Careless Hour will be a Mr. Arnold Cream, commercially known as Jersey Joe Walcott—an estimable man whom fate has coldly marked for violence.

The project, widely designated as "Operation Bop," is said by connoisseurs of violence, in fact, to feature the precision quality of a push-button blasting, thus:

The time: Practically any minute after 10 p. m. (EST).

The place: Madison Square Garden.

The purpose: Quaint, but no end remunerative.

The receipts, in fact, were expected to total well beyond the $200,000 mark for a record gate at the Garden, more than double the amount that the likes of Dempsey was able to draw.

Just how this is possible in the circumstances remained one of the baffling aspects of life in the great city.

RESULTS, not reasons, are all that matter in a case like this—and quite definitely the financial windfall was a very flattering thing to a co-attraction who, only a few years ago, had been ruled off the resin in his home state.

They found him suffering at the time from a complication of maladies, including too many birthdays.

Tonight, it'll probably be an overdose of dropsy.

Anyhow, that's what the betting odds were saying today at 8, 9 and 10 to 1, which means there's only one chance they're giving Walcott to take Louis and the world's heavyweight championship tonight.

The humane society might insist that he be allowed in there with a baseball bat.

It may or may not be worth mentioning, meanwhile, that the last time a heavyweight challenger of some distinction was 10-1 in the Broadway books, Max Baer, the irresistible favorite, took a 15-round slathering from James J. Braddock.

However, any resemblance, either way, between this pair and tonight's principals was wholly coincidental.

Meaning, Walcott isn't the man Braddock was; and Baer never saw the day he had the right to lace Louis' gloves.

It will be the champion's 24th defense of the title since winning it from Braddock in 1937, and his first appearance with the chips supposedly down since September a year ago when he put the bowser on Tami Mauriello in less than a round.

SEVERAL months before that, he beat down Billy Conn in eight.

These alarming gestures by a postwar Louis rounded out a record unprecedented in the tradition of the heavyweight class and, like as not, any other—52 knockouts in 60 professional fights.

That's one reason the "Operation Bop" was so highly fancied tonight, with approximately even money allegedly being quoted that Louis would win in less than four rounds. Another was Louis' apparently sound condition, in spite of the fact that he's well on toward 34.

A third was Walcott. Only a fair hand at best, he's suspected of being in the age-group that's all for a life of ease and refinement. He claims 33, but is said to be a doddering 37.

Irish Arriving In Los Angeles For Football's Biggest Battle

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—The Notre Dame football club, which has more polish than the boots of a Marine Corps sergeant, will haul into Los Angeles today and slap on some final finishing touches for the "Intersectional battle of the decade."

This undefeated 1947 edition of Irishmen, reputed in most quarters to be the greatest outfit ever to roll out of South Bend, will pile off a train about noon.

The 39 players and Chief Character-Builder Frank Leahy will then hit St. Alphonsus church for mass. An hour later they will whip through a secret workout at Memorial coliseum.

All this bustle of business, of course, is in preparation for Notre Dame's crucial contest tomorrow with the toast of the coast—an undefeated but once-tied tribe of Trojans from Southern California.

A crowd of 104,000 will speculate the ultimate outcome.

THE GAME, which will help decide the nation's mythical gridiron championship, still stacks up as a 13-point victory for the bruisers from South Bend.

That's the way the betting brokers tab it. So do a lot of other reputedly solid football minds, including Coach Pappy Waldorf of the University of California, who openly opined today that Southern Cal should change its theme song to "I ain't got a ghost of a chance."

The weatherman predicts rain for the game. But bum weather won't affect the outcome of the classic one whit.

A huge nylon tarpaulin has covered the turf of massive Memorial coliseum for the past two days.

Leahy, usually as gloomy as today's Southern California skies, repeated he will prance with glee if his team can whip the coast champs by a single digit. He added:

"I don't honestly see how we can win this one."

Miami Cagers Open Season With Victory

By International News Service
Miami university's fighting Redskins emerged today from their initial spree on the 1947-48 basketball warpath with a decisive 72-40 win over Deafness.

The Miami quintet on its home floor last night in Oxford showed unerring accuracy in romping to its first victory.

Miami forward Bob Brown, high scorer for the evening with 20 points, gave the winners an early lead which they never relinquished.

Down along the Ohio river a Marietta college team took the measure of Rio Grande, 74 to 50.

The third game involving Ohio teams was played in Columbus where Wilmington won a well-played game over Bliss college by the score of 50 to 43.

Wilmington trailed the Columbus team, 27 to 24, at half-time but rallied in the second half for its first win this year.

Durocher Statement Awaited

Observers See Leo In Again

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Reinstatement of Leo Durocher as 1948 manager of the Champion Brooklyn Dodgers is expected to be announced tomorrow by President Branch Rickey.

The decision to restore last season's suspended leader to the managerial throne at Ebbets Field has already been made, according to closely informed persons today, and needs only Rickey's formal word to make it official.

All other details, it was said, have been ironed out in a series of conferences at Cincinnati, Chesterton, Md., and the club's headquarters within recent days.

These reported developments, if confirmed, would end one of the cause celebres of baseball initiated by Commissioner Chandler last April in suspending Durocher for a full season on "detrimental conduct" charges.

HE WAS declared eligible again at the close of the last World Series in which the Dodgers, directed by a fill-in manager, Burt Shotton, were defeated by the New York Yankees.

Shotton, hurriedly summoned yesterday from his Lakeland, Fla., home, held an urgent conference with Rickey last night.

A meeting of the Brooklyn coaches, Clyde Sukeforth, Jake Pitler and Ray Blades, is scheduled at the Brooklyn office today.

These developments forecast, it was stated, a quick decision by Rickey. The announcement is expected in advance of the opening of the major league meetings that begin in New York Monday.

his team through a light workout after the Villanova aggregation, coached by Jordan Oliver, completes its drills in the stadium this afternoon.

Bryant said Halfbacks Don Phelps and Jack Farris and End Wallace Jones have been injured in scrimmage practice this week and will not see action tomorrow. Phelps and Farris were Kentucky's leading ground gainers this past season.

OSU-Oklahoma Cage Battle Due Tonight

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—William Henry Harrison (Tippy) Dye will unveil his all-sophomore Ohio State university basketball team tonight against Oklahoma at the State Fairgrounds coliseum.

The Bucks couldn't have picked a much tougher foe for their initial test. The Sooners were runners-up in the national collegiate invitational tournament last spring.

Both Dye and Bruce Drake of the Sooners will start only one 1946-47 regular tonight. For Ohio State, Forward Bob Donham started most of last season's games as a freshman. Oklahoma's lone hold-over is Paul Courty, second highest Sooner scorer last year.

Drake will have four other lettermen in the lineup, however, while only Donham and elongated Neil Johnston among Ohio's seven lettermen will see starting action.

With Johnson at center and Donham at Forward, Dye will use Dick Schnitker at forward and Guards Gene Brown and Bob Burkholder. The team averages six feet, two inches with Burkholder the shorty at 5-10.

Jimmy Harris, Buck set shot artist, who was a letterman last year, will miss the opening contest because of illness. So will Jim Wells, Ted Jacobs and Frank Hitt, who don't become eligible until next quarter.

Browns To Prep With Colt '11'

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Cleveland's Browns were to engage today in their last practice of the regular All-American conference season.

The western division champions will leave Cleveland tomorrow for Baltimore where they play the Colts in what amounts to a warm-up drill for the conference title championship in New York. The Colts have won only two games this season.

Bill Boedeker turned up with an injured ankle in workouts at League Park yesterday and probably will not see action in the Baltimore tilt. However, Bob Cowan, who has been out with an injury since the San Francisco game, reported in uniform and appeared ready to go again.

Cavaliers Gave Locals 2 Defeats

Tonight the Red and Black basketball team of Circleville high school sets forth on the Roll-n-Bowl court to test its strength against the powerful Chillicothe five. Since both teams open their seasons simultaneously, it is difficult to predict the outcome.

There is to be no all-year captain for the Circleville Tigers this year, but a different captain will be chosen for each game. Coach Dorwin Peer said the captain for tonight's game will be one of the senior players.

The Cavaliers, who severely trimmed the Chillicothe squad 71-28 and 81-23 in two encounters last season, have elected John Shearow, 6-foot-4-inch center as their captain.

Coach Ed Alexinas of the Blue and White said that his starting lineup probably would find Ed Wagner and Dave Kings as the forwards; Shearow at center; and Dick Arledge and Kent Kirkwood as the guards. Two of these men are lettermen from last year, while the others all saw action on the junior varsity team.

PEER'S starters are expected to be Bob Eccard and Jack Young at forwards, Bob Shaw at center, with Paul Smallwood and "Red" Crawford at the guards. Dean Smallwood probably will see plenty of action in Young's spot during the scrap, and Tom Eveland, Ralph Starkey, Roy Huffer, John Payne, Paul Kraft, and Marcus Albright will be on hand as other subs.

Circleville's reserves are ready to pit their power against the reserves of the Blue and White tonight, too. Coach Steve Brudzinski said his starting lineup probably would be "Sandy" Hill, Jim Starkey, John Valentine, Abe Ruhl and Don Mancini, with support from Ted Sims, Roy Palmer and Richard Stein.

The doors of the Roll-n-Bowl will open at 6:15 p. m. with the reserve tilt booked for 7 p. m. All tickets purchased at the gate will cost 50 cents.

If students wish to attend at reduced rates they must have purchased tickets in advance of the game at the high school. The game tonight is to be broadcast over station WBEX, Chillicothe.

Coaches Plan All-Star '11'

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Names of candidates for the Ohio High School Football Coaches Association's All-Ohio football team will be tossed into the cauldron tonight. District representatives of the coaches association plan to begin their selection meeting after seeing the Bucks open their cage season.

Also on the agenda is selection of a site for the 1948 high school All-Star football game, with Canton and Lockland as leading candidates. Coaches and playing squads also will be chosen for the midsummer classic.

Totes Mandatory On Mile Track

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Ohio's mile race tracks must install totalizers this year, or else.

O. C. Belt, chairman of the State Racing Commission, declared today that the "or else" means the tracks won't operate. Belt repeated a warning that the "totes" must be installed at the tracks if their operators expect to get dates from the commission for the 1948 season.

The regulation calling for installation of the automatic betting machines was adopted some time ago, but extensions have been granted in the past because shortages of materials made the machines scarce.

TONIGHT: OPERATION BOP

Fate Marks Jersey Joe Walcott For Violence, Alias Joe Louis

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Target for tonight and guest star on the Joe Louis Chin-You-Love-To-Career Hour will be a Mr. Arnold Cream, commercially known as Jersey Joe Walcott—an estimable man whom fate has coldly marked for violence.

The project, widely designated as "Operation Bop," is said by connoisseurs of violence, in fact, to feature the precision quality of a push-button blasting, thus:

The time: Practically any minute after 10 p. m. (EST).

The place: Madison Square Garden.

The purpose: Quaint, but no end remuneration.

The receipts, in fact, were expected to total well beyond the $200,000 mark for a record gate at the Garden, more than double the amount that the likes of Dempsey was able to draw.

Just how this is possible in the circumstances remained one of the baffling aspects of life in the great city.

RESULTS, not reasons, are all that matter in a case like this—and quite definitely the financial windfall was a very flattering thing to a co-attendant who, only a few years ago, had been ruled off the resin in his home state.

They found him suffering at the time from a complication of maladies, including too many birthdays.

Tonight, it'll probably be an overdose of dropsy.

Anyhow, that's what the betting odds were saying today at 8, 9 and 10 to 1, which means there's only one chance they're giving Walcott to take Louis and the world's heavyweight championship tonight.

The humane society might insist that he be allowed in there with a baseball bat.

It may or may not be worth mentioning, meanwhile, that the last time a heavyweight

Pettibone Quint Drops Unbeaten Albany Team

Pettibone Plumbers of Ashville Thursday night kept their semipro basketball slate clean as they stopped a previously undefeated Albany Athletic club with a score of 56-45.

The Albany crew grabbed an early lead over Ashville and led 15-8 at the quarter, but Ashville gradually picked up the slack and was ahead, 25-21, at the half. The Plumbers were not headed thereafter. Ashville's hardwooders scored freely with all but two players entering the scoring column. Russ Gregg paced the pack with 17 points, with 17 points.

In the preliminary, Ashville A. C. topped Wyandotte A. C., 37-33.

challenger of some distinction was 10-1 in the Broadway books. Max Baer, the irresistible favorite, took a 15-round slathering from James J. Braddock.

However, any resemblance, either way, between this pair and tonight's principals was wholly coincidental.

Meaning, Walcott isn't the man Braddock was; and Baer never saw the day he had the right to lace Louis' gloves.

Irish Arriving In Los Angeles For Football's Biggest Battle

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—The Notre Dame football club, which has more polish than the boots of a Marine Corps sergeant, will haul into Los Angeles today and slap on some final finishing touches for the "intersectional battle of the decade."

This undefeated 1947 edition of Irishmen, reputed in most quarters to be the greatest outfit ever to roll out of South Bend, will pile off a train about noon.

The 39 players and Chief Character-Builder Frank Leahy will then tie to St. Alphonsus church for mass. An hour later they will whip through a secret workout at Memorial coliseum.

All this bustle of business, of

It will be the champion's 24th defense of the title since winning it from Braddock in 1937, and his first appearance with the chips supposedly down since September a year ago when he put the bowser on Tami Mauriello in less than a round.

SEVERAL months before that he beat down Billy Conn in eight.

These alarming gestures by a postwar Louis rounded out a record unprecedented in the tradition of the heavyweight class and, like as not, any other—52 knockouts in 60 professional fights.

That's one reason the "Operation Bop" was so highly fancied tonight, with approximately even money allegedly being quoted that Louis would win in less than four rounds. Another was Louis' apparently sound condition, in spite of the fact that he's well on toward 34.

A third was Walcott. Only a fair hand at best, he's suspected of being in the age-group that's all for a life of ease and refinement. He claims 33, but is said to be a doddering 37.

HE WAS declared eligible again at the close of the last World Series in which the Dodgers, directed by a fill-in manager, Burt Shotton, were defeated by the New York Yankees.

Shotton, hurriedly summoned yesterday from his Lakeland, Fla., home, held an urgent conference with Rickey last night. A meeting of the Brooklyn coaches, Clyde Sukeforth, Jake Pitler and Ray Blades, is scheduled at the Brooklyn office today.

These developments forecast, it was stated, a quick decision by Rickey. The announcement is expected in advance of the opening of the major league meetings that begin in New York Monday.

THE GAME, which will help decide the nation's mythical gridiron championship, still stacks up as a 13-point victory for the bruisers from South Bend.

That's the way the betting brokers tab it. So do a lot of other reputedly solid football minds, including Coach Pappy Waldorf of the University of California, who openly opined today that Southern Cal should change its theme song to "I ain't got a ghost of a chance."

The weatherman predicts rain for the game. But bum weather won't affect the outcome of the classic one whit.

A huge nylon tarpaulin has covered the turf of massive Memorial coliseum for the past two days. Leahy, usually as gloomy as today's Southern California skies, repeated he will prance with glee if his team can whip the coast champs by a single digit. He added:

"I don't honestly see how we can win this one."

Durocher Statement Awaited

Observers See Leo In Again

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Reinstatement of Leo Durocher as 1948 manager of the Champion Brooklyn Dodgers is expected to be announced tomorrow by President Branch Rickey.

The decision to restore last season's suspended leader to the managerial throne at Ebbets Field has already been made, according to closely informed persons today, and needs only Rickey's formal word to make it official.

All other details, it was said, have been ironed out in a series of conferences at Cincinnati, Chesterton, Md., and the club's headquarters within recent days.

These reported developments, if confirmed, would end one of the cause celebres of baseball initiated by Commissioner Chandler last April in suspending Durocher for a full season on "detrimental conduct" charges.

OSU-Oklahoma Cage Battle Due Tonight

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—William Henry Harrison (Tippy) Dye will unveil his all-sophomore Ohio State university basketball team tonight against Oklahoma at the State Fair grounds coliseum.

The Bucks couldn't have picked a much tougher foe for their initial test. The Sooners were runners-up in the national collegiate invitational tournament last spring.

Both Dye and Bruce Drake of the Sooners will start only one 1946-47 regular tonight. For Ohio State, Forward Bob Donham started most of last season's games as a freshman. Oklahoma's lone hold-over is Paul Courty, second highest Sooner scorer last year.

Drake will have four other lettermen in the lineup, however, while only Donham and elongated Neil Johnston among Ohio's seven lettermen will see starting action.

With Johnson at center and Donham at Forward, Dye will use Dick Schnittker at forward and Guards Gene Brown and Bob Burkholder. The team averages six feet, two inches with Burkholder the shorty at 5-10.

Jimmy Harris, Buck set shot artist, who was a letterman last year, will miss the opening contest because of illness. So will Jim Wells, Ted Jacobs and Frank Hitt, who don't become eligible until next quarter.

The royal antelope, found on the west coast of Africa, is the smallest of all true cud chewing animals. It is only about 10 inches high.

Browns To Prep With Colt '11'

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Cleveland's Browns were to engage today in their last practice of the regular All-American conference season.

The western division champions will leave Cleveland tomorrow for Baltimore where they play the Colts in what amounts to a warm-up drill for the conference title championship in New York. The Colts have won only two games this season.

Bill Boedeker turned up with an injured ankle in workouts at League Park yesterday and probably will not see action in the Baltimore tilt. However, Bob Cowan, who has been out with an injury since the San Francisco game, reported in uniform and appeared ready to go again.

Dreisewerd Gets AA Hill Crown

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Clem Dreisewerd, Louisville lefthander, topped all American Association pitchers in 1947 with 18 victories and an earned run average of 2.15.

Dreisewerd also tied for the most complete games, according to figures issued today. The Louisville southpaw appeared in 17 complete contests, as did

NEW SOUND FROM SIGHT

Deaf Tots, Through 'Visual Speech,' Learn to Talk

SEEING SOUNDS—These children learn to read speech patterns by use of cathode-ray translator.

By BIRT DARLING
Central Press Correspondent

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Deaf from birth, a group of kindergarten children had their first experience with sound when they "saw" a kitten's meow.

These youngsters never went through the age-old routine of learning "what the kitty says" or "how the dog barks." They've never heard an animal's cry or the voice of a human being.

Enrolled in the Rackham School of Special Education, located on campus of Michigan State Normal college at nearby Ypsilanti, they're taking part in an experimental program of "visual speech," directed by Dr. George Kopp, associate professor of speech at the University of Michigan.

Doctor Kopp and his associate, Miss Harriet Green, associate professor of special education, and the teachers in the Rackham school are working with equipment developed during the war by the Bell telephone laboratories in New York.

AT UNIVERSITY of Michigan speech clinic, research is being carried on with the "acoustical spectrograph," which transposes the spoken word into distinguishable patterns on paper. Deaf children at the Rackham school are being taught to read these patterns and to imitate them with a "cathode-ray speech translator" which throws the pattern made by the spoken word upon a screen where the pupil may observe it as he speaks.

First step in this research and service program is to train the teachers who must use this visual speech equipment. Teachers of the deaf from the Rackham school are now enrolled in a special class at the university, along with regular university students, learning to use the machines.

Doctor Kopp and Miss Green are beginning their training program with a class of a dozen children. One group consists of kindergarten youngsters, all congenitally deaf.

A second group is composed of children, somewhat older. Although they are also congenitally deaf, they have acquired a limited vocabulary through other types of teaching.

and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morris and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morris and sons visited Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stephenson and family, Washington C. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Skinner and daughters were Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Skinner of Waterloo.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke Kearney of Washington C. H. were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Evans and son and Wilford Evans.

Edwin Buck was a Thanksgiving day guest of Mrs. Homer F. Belt and family of Orient.

Mrs. Fred McCoy and son and Mrs. Lonnie Fletcher were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Keaton.

Mrs. Lilly Means of Charleston West Va. was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Lamb.

Trevvie Bush, New Holland, is spending this week with his grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bush.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Eckle, Washington C. H. visited Sunday Clark Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Wright, Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Ulin McGhee and George and John Skinner were Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Skinner and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Arnold, Clarksburg and Mr. and Mrs. George Donohoe and daughter VISIBLE SPEECH—Dr. George Kopp operates acoustical spectrograph.

A third group consists of children partially deaf who can learn to use hearing aids.

WHEN the youngsters are told that the machine will help them learn to talk, their enthusiasm is unbounded. They begin to learn a few simple patterns

Relief Expenses For Pickaway Jump 73 Pct. In Year

$3,328.70 Spent In November

Case Load Hiked To 100 Persons

Expenditures for relief of unfortunate families and individuals in Pickaway county increased more than 73 percent in November compared with the costs for the same month a year ago.

Miss Pauline Roese, county relief director, reported Friday that relief expenses last month total $3,328.70 as against a total of $1,868.30 in November, 1946, a gain of $1,370.40.

Miss Roese said the number of relief cases listed in November, 1947 totaled 100, as compared with 65 in November, 1946, an increase of about 53 percent.

"Hospitalization of indigents was partly responsible for the increase in expenditures," Miss Roese explained. "Responsibility for hospitalization formerly rested with township trustees and the Circleville city safety director but it became the responsibility of the relief office on Sept. 29, 1947, by a ruling of the state welfare department."

Miss Roese pointed out that the city has no relief department and that her office handles relief cases in the city as well as throughout the county.

THE STATE welfare department contributes 50 percent of the necessary money, Miss Roese explained, and the other 50 percent is advanced by the county commissioners. However, the costs of caring for needy families within Circleville are calculated separately and the city refunds to the county the municipality's share of the 50 percent paid to the relief office by the county commissioners.

Figures released by Miss Roese show that relief costs have been divided almost equally between relief clients in Circleville and those in the remainder of the county.

The outlay last month was $1,619.37 in the city and $1,619.33 in the county, whereas in November, 1946, the expenditures totaled $950.94 in the rural areas and $917.36 in Circleville.

The relief director's figures revealed that relief costs jumped from $2,248.50 in October, 1947, to $3,328.70 in November, 1947, a gain of $980.20 or more than 44 percent. During the same period the number of relief clients increased from 77 to 100, a gain of 23, or about 30 percent. The case load total was 72 in October 1946. It stood at 79 in September, 1947 as against 80 in September, 1946.

Miss Roese explained that the figures pertaining to the cases on the relief rolls included both direct relief and medical cases.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—World-wide arms reduction, atomic power control and abolition of peacetime military training is the only formula which will achieve permanent peace in the opinion of Socialist Leader Norman Thomas.

IN OCTOBER, 1947 the relief costs were $1,299.97 in the county and $948.53 in the city, a total of $2,248.50, as compared with $950.94 in the county and $917.36 in the city, in October, 1946, a total of $1,868.30, which shows a gain of $380.20.

The total for September, 1947, was $2,288.50 consisting of $1,270.55 for the county and $1,017.95 for the city, as against the September, 1946 total of $1,937.96 consisting of $1,157.24 for the county and $780.72 for the city, showing an increase of $350.54.

Ranks Of Moonshiners Found To Be Declining

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—The Bureau of Internal Revenue reported today that the moonshiner is beginning to disappear—at least from the revenuers.

Whether the illicit distiller is gradually going out of business or just finding better hiding places, the bureau won't hazard a guess.

But the revenuers say that between July and October, the number of persons arrested for producing home-made intoxicants was only about one-fourth of the 1939 level.

One theory advanced to account for the disappearing moonshiner is that because of increased incomes, the nation's thirsty are better able to afford the higher prices of legitimate brands at authorized dealers.

The self-styled whisky manufacturer, who violates the law in selling his brews without concern for the various alcohol taxes and proper licenses, depends upon customers who like their liquor cheap.

IN AVOIDING these taxes and much of the "middleman expense" connected with marketing standard liquors, the illegal distiller can cut prices to the bone. But once his drinking customers decide to pay regular prices, the moonshiner ends up out of business or producing only for his own consumption.

Revenue reports state that the number of stills seized by the government in the July-October interval also decreased, although not to the extent of distillers themselves.

Moonshine authorities interpret this as an indication that the illegal stills are also suffering from the labor shortage and getting by with less hands.

Liquor sources declare that present high salaries have also affected the number of moonshiners in a way other than reducing their customers.

They say that many outlaw distillers have discarded their bathtubs and brewing devices to turn legitimate and work for legal brewers at higher wages.

But despite depletion of their ranks, moonshiners have remained about the same geographically.

THE SOUTH is still their greatest stronghold with nearly half of the stills seized since July in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina.

About a fourth of the number taken over were located in Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia and the nation's capital itself. The Midwest and West Coast were virtually untouched.

Kentucky and Tennessee suffered the largest proportionate drop of any sizable moonshine area. The number of establishments seized there was less than half the 1939 statistic.

Police Amazed By Sudden Wealth Of Boys

MALDEN, MASS., Dec. 5—Police were amazed today at the story book tale unfolded by four youths who allegedly told of taking more than $5,000 from an open safe in a barn over a three-week period in which they lived a playboy existence.

Officers said the boys ranged in age from 13 to 16. They were picked up at their homes, according to detectives, who said about $2,000 of the cash was missing.

Another $4,000 was left untouched in the safe in a barn in the rear of a laundry. According to police the safe was not tampered with, that the boys while prowling around found it unlocked.

Police said the boys made their discovery in mid-November and that since then they have satisfied not only their own desires but have aided other neighborhood youths. According to police the romance of a 19-year-old friend of the boys was furthered by funds from the safe. He was given $200, police said, to buy an engagement ring.

Downfall of the quartet, according to police, came when one of the four turned to gambling and won another $400. His parents kept the money for him after he told of winning it in a raffle. Angered, authorities said, he confessed and implicated the other boys.

$3,328.70 Spent In November

Case Load Hiked To 100 Persons

Expenditures for relief of unfortunate families and individuals in Pickaway county increased more than 73 percent in November compared with the costs for the same month a year ago.

Miss Pauline Reese, county relief director, reported Friday that relief expenses last month total $3,328.70 as against a total of $1,868.30 in November, 1946, a gain of $1,370.40.

Miss Reese said the number of relief cases listed in November, 1947 totaled 100, as compared with 65 in November, 1946, an increase of about 53 percent.

"Hospitalization of indigents was partly responsible for the increase in expenditures," Miss Reese explained. "Responsibility for hospitalization formerly rested with township trustees and the Circleville city safety director but it became the responsibility of the relief office on Sept. 29, 1947, by a ruling of the state welfare department."

Miss Reese pointed out that the city has no relief department and that her office handles relief cases in the city as well as throughout the county.

THE STATE welfare department contributes 50 percent of the necessary money, Miss Reese explained, and the other 50 percent is advanced by the county commissioners. However, the costs of caring for needy families within Circleville are calculated separately and the city refunds to the county the municipality's share of the 50 percent paid to the relief office by the county commissioners.

Figures released by Miss Reese show that relief costs have been divided almost equally between relief clients in Circleville and those in the remainder of the county.

The outlay last month was $1,619.37 in the city and $1,619.33 in the county, whereas in November, 1946, the expenditures totaled $950.94 in the rural areas and $917.36 in Circleville.

The relief director's figures revealed that relief costs jumped from $2,248.50 in October, 1947, to $3,238.70 in November, 1947, a gain of $990.20 or more than 44 percent. During the same period the number of relief clients increased from 77 to 100, a gain of 23, or about 30 percent. The case load total was 72 in October 1946. It stood at 79 in September, 1947 as against 80 in September, 1946.

Miss Reese explained that the figures pertaining to the cases

Thomas Urging Arms Reduction

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—World-wide arms reduction, atomic power control and abolition of peacetime military training is the only formula which will achieve permanent peace in the opinion of Socialist Leader Norman Thomas.

Thomas told an Ohio State university audience yesterday that the United States lacked a definite foreign policy.

The lecturer said: "We must set our own house in order first. Our own democracy does not compare favorably with Communism in the eyes of many European people."

on the relief rolls included both direct relief and medical cases.

IN OCTOBER, 1947 the relief costs were $1,299.97 in the county and $948.53 in the city, a total of $2,248.50, as compared with $950.94 in the county and $917.36 in the city, in October, 1946, a total of $1,868.30, which shows a gain of $380.20.

The total for September, 1947, was $2,288.50 consisting of $1,270.55 for the county and $1,017.95 for the city, as against the September, 1946 total of $1,937.96 consisting of $1,157.24 for the county and $780.72 for the city, showing an increase of $350.54.

Ranks Of Moonshiners Found To Be Declining

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—The Bureau of Internal Revenue reported today that the moonshiner is beginning to disappear—at least from the revenuers.

Whether the illicit distiller is gradually going out of business or just finding better hiding places, the bureau won't hazard a guess.

But the revenuers say that between July and October, the number of persons arrested for producing home-made intoxicants was only about one-fourth of the 1939 level.

One theory advanced to account for the disappearing moonshiner is that because of increased incomes, the nation's thirsty are better able to afford the higher prices of legitimate brands at authorized dealers.

The self-styled whisky manufacturer, who violates the law in selling his brews without concern for the various alcohol taxes and proper licenses, depends upon customers who like their liquor cheap.

IN AVOIDING these taxes and much of the "middleman expense" connected with marketing standard liquors, the illegal distiller can cut prices to the bone. But once his drinking customers decide to pay regular prices, the moonshiner ends up out of business or producing only for his own consumption.

Revenue reports state that the number of stills seized by the government in the July-October interval also decreased, although not to the extent of distillers themselves. Moonshine authorities interpret this as an indication that the illegal stills are also suffering from the labor shortage and getting by with less hands.

Liquor sources declare that present high salaries have also affected the number of moonshiners in a way other than reducing their customers.

They say that many outlaw distillers have discarded their bathtubs and brewing devices to turn legitimate and work for legal brewers at higher wages.

But despite depletion of their ranks, moonshiners have remained about the same geographically.

THE SOUTH is still their greatest stronghold with nearly half of the stills seized since July in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina.

About a fourth of the number taken over were located in Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia and the nation's capital itself. The Midwest and West Coast were virtually untouched.

Kentucky and Tennessee suffered the largest proportionate drop of any sizable moonshine area. The number of establishments seized there was less than half the 1939 statistic.

Police Amazed By Sudden Wealth Of Boys

MALDEN, MASS., Dec. 5—Police were amazed today at the story book tale unfolded by four youths who allegedly told of taking more than $5,000 from an open safe in a barn over a three-week period in which they lived a playboy existence.

Officers said the boys ranged in age from 13 to 16. They were picked up at their homes, according to detectives, who said about $2,000 of the cash was missing.

Another $4,000 was left untouched in the safe in a barn in the rear of a laundry. According to police the safe was not tampered with, that the boys while prowling around found it unlocked.

Police said the boys made their discovery in mid-November and that since then they have satisfied not only their own desires but have aided other neighborhood youths. According to police the romance of a 19-year-old friend of the boys was furthered by funds from the safe. He was given $200, police said, to buy an engagement ring. Downfall of the quartet, according to police, came when one of the four turned to gambling and won another $400. His parents kept the money for him after he told of winning it in a raffle. Angered, authorities said, the youth telephoned police to come to the house and protect him and his money.

Under questioning, police said, he confessed and implicated the other boys.
